Indo-Chinese Military Aid Is Pledged By Acheson

Paris, May 8 (AP).—Secretary of State Dean Acheson announced tonight that immediate financial aid and military equipment will be thrown into the shooting war in Indo-China.

At the same time authoritative sources said he had won French assent to putting Western Germans in charge of their own foreign policy for the first time since the war.

These developments came from day-long conferences among the American Secretary of State and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and their aides. They were the first fruits of conferences, expected to continue here and in London for at least 10 days, with ministers of Atlantic Pact nations on tightening the cold war front against communism.

Quick Aid to Indo-China

Authoritative informants said Schuman and Acheson had agreed, subject to British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's accord, on revisions of the German occupation statute which would give the Bonn republic virtually complete leeway in its political and economic affairs.

It was emphasized, however, that any changes in the statute agreed upon in London would not be put into effect until next fall when the statute is scheduled for possible revision.

Qualified sources said American aid in Indo-China, where guerilla war with Moscow-backed Ho Chi-Minh had been stalemated more than four years, would be immediate.

The bulk of 75 million dollars already appropriated by Congress to combat communism in the Far East will go to the French-backed Vietnamese of former emperor Bao Dai and the associated states of Cambodia and Laos, it was explained. The appropriation expires in June. Originally Indo-China was due to get only 15 million dollars from the fund.

Direct Arms Shipment

Arms and other military aid, it was said by an authoritative American source, will be shipped directly to Indo-China—none of it will be channeled through France. Furthermore, little of the aid will be economic.

Conversations already are under way in Paris, Washington and Saigon on employment of the allotment, it was reported.

Schuman, it was learned from other sources, assured Acheson that France soon will release the three associated Indo-Chinese states in the French union from supervision by the French Colonial Ministry by creating a new ministry for "commonwealth relations."

In a statement Acheson emphasized that the United States expects a steadily larger degree of

Reds 'Agree' To City-Wide Berlin Election

Berlin, May 8 (AP). — Russia agreed tonight to city-wide elections in divided Berlin but coupled her proposal with a list of conditions designed to give every advantage to East German Communists.

Among the Russian terms was one which would require the withdrawal of occupation troops of all four powers from the city. This would mean pulling Russian troops back only to the outskirts of the city while American, British and French units would have to be evacuated to western Germany.

The Soviet terms were contained in a letter sent by Col. Alexei Jelisarov of the Soviet Control Commission to the American, British and French commandants. It was in reply to a Western Allied request of three weeks ago for free elections in all sectors of Berlin.

Other Conditions

The Soviet reply also called for:

1. Scrapping the occupation statute now in force in West Berlin. This is the set of rules whereby the Western powers delegated self-government to the West Berliners except in the fields of foreign policy and questions of security.

2. Granting permission for the Communist "National Front" and all other Communist-inspired political organs of East Berlin to function unhindered in the western sectors.

3. Abolition of sector boundaries.

4. Restoration by the Western Allies of voting privileges to all former Nazis except those who lost that right upon conviction as war criminals.

Western Allied officials were wary of making any detailed comments but an American spokesman said:

"I am sure the commandants will give the proposal every possible consideration."

He indicated a special meeting may be called Tuesday to see if any portions of the idea are acceptable and decide which portions must go to a higher authority for discussion.

The Russian proposal climaxed a day set aside in the Soviet zone for celebration of the fifth anniversary of the "liberation of Germany by the Soviet army"—known n the West as V-E Day.

Hudson Outpitches Feller, Nats Defeat Tribe Again, 4-2

By Morris Siegel

Bob Feller drew 'em out, but it was Sid Hudson who got 'em out last night.

Before 19,985 onlookers, gathered chiefly to see Feller pitch, big Sid blanked the Cleveland Indians for eight innings and had enough left to choke off a critical ninth-inning charge for a 4-2 Nats victory.

Hudson, the first Nats flinger to win three games, gave one of his finer performances before an appreciative Griffith Stadium audience.

Going into the ninth inning, he not only had a six-hit shutout, but had also driven in two runs. And then, with two away, two Cleveland runs already across and two more waiting to be propelled across by Mickey Vernon, Hudson came up with the play of the game to preserve his victory and give the Nats a sweep of the two-game series.

Vernon ducked away from an inside pitch, but the ball hit his bat and skittered down the third base line. Hudson, one of the slickest fielding pitchers in baseball, leaped off the mound, fielded the ball and made a perfect throw to first base while off balance to nip Vernon by half a step and wind up the game.

Hudson, mowing the Indians down with his sharp-breaking side-arm stuff, was in serious difficulty only one other time—back in the sixth inning, but the situation wasn't nearly as critical as in the ninth.

Bob Lemon, batting for Gene Beardon, had smashed the third single of the exciting ninth to chase in two runs, and Dale

U. S. Sinking Of Submarine Hinted Here

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Representative Stephen M. Young (D., Ohio) suggested yesterday that an American warship may have clashed with a "strange" submarine and "sunk it with depth bombs."

He declared in a prepared statement that "submarines have been reconnoitering our radar defenses" in Alaska and along the West Coast and added cryptically that one of them may have been attacked.

The Ohio Congressman-at-Large—a veteran of both World Wars—refused to elaborate on his suggestion that such an incident may have occurred, beyond saying "I didn't dream this and didn't get it out of my mind."

A Navy spokesman declared that it had not confirmed any of the rumors of submarine contacts off our coasts and therefore "does not confirm that any subs have been

Cool Weather Here to Continue For Another Day

Continued cool weather was forecast for the District today, but the Weather Bureau said Wednesday should be "fairly mild" again.

With an overnight low of 42 predicted for the city and 34 for the suburbs, the Weather Bureau warned peach growers in outlying areas to prepare for frost. Some Maryland sections — particularly Allegany and Washington Counties—might have below-freezing temperatures, a special bulletin said.

The top temperature in Washington today probably will not top 68 degrees. The low yesterday was 48 at 6:10 a. m.

Two U. S. Fliers To Be Released, Chinese Reds Say

Hongkong (Tuesday), May 9 (U.P.). Two American fliers are being released after almost 19 months detention by the Communists, Peiping Radio announced today.

The men were William C. Smith, Long Beach, Calif., a Navy chief construction electrician, and Elmer C. Bender, of Cincinnati and Chicago, a Marine Corps master sergeant.

Both men, members of U. S. naval headquarters at Tsingtao, had been missing since October 19, 1948, after taking off in a small L-5 liaison plane for a routine training flight. The Communists confiscated the plane.

The State Department has sent many notes demanding their release and finally turned over negotiations to the British when the United States withdrew its diplomatic mission from Red China.

The broadcast said the men carried out reconnaissance of Communist military installations and lines of communications leading into Manchuria.

Bender and Smith at first "refused to reveal the motive for this unlawful flight but finally, influenced by our magnanimous policy toward prisoners, began to confess" the broadcast said.

Peking said the Americans admitted being sent out by a "Major Lantz" to scout out the railway into Manchuria and that after they confessed and repented they were being released and deported "in line with the magnanimous policy of the Chinese Peoples Liberation Army toward prisoners."

The broadcast warned any such actions in the future "by American imperialists will be dealt with ruthlessly by the Chinese people."

Cows Being Tested in Heated Chambers for Deep-South Type

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

If you like rare steak, go to Beltsville.

Agriculture Department experimenters at the Government station there are virtually cooking cows on the hoof. They want to find out how much heat the various breeds can take and still give milk.

The aim is to discover an animal that can stand the torrid heat of the Deep South and produce milk in that milk-shy country.

The beasts are kept in heated chambers until they show signs of collapse. The Holstein, for instance, can take only about 95 degrees Fahrenheit. The Jersey can stand about 5 degrees more, or 100. But a new breed the Bureau of Dairy Industry is developing, which is part Red Sindhi and part Jersey, has taken 105 degrees without batting an eye. The experimenters plan to learn how much more it can absorb soon. The Red Sindhi from red-hot areas of India, is the best milk-producing animal of the Brahmin strain. Uncle Sam, late in the war, imported four by air to use in the present experiments.

The heat experiments with the dairy cows were revealed by the Agriculture Department to visiting State Experiment Station editors yesterday. The Beltsville authorities also took the wraps off several other closely-held secrets.

Among these is a new type of in-

Truman Hits Farm Plan Opponents

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Lincoln, Neb., May 8.—President Truman today removed the "non-political" wraps from this trip with a fighting speech for his Brannan Plan and a scorching denunciation of "cheap" isolationism.

At Lincoln tonight he hit in 1948 style at "selfish and short-sighted people" opposing his farm program and made it clear as crystal he was talking about Republican leaders.

Impressive crowds, that reached a peak of 30,000 at Ottumwa, Iowa, cheered his progress through the tank towns of three States. Seven thousand stood in a pouring rain to hear him speak at Crescent, Iowa, more rain-spattered throngs turned out at Stanton and Pacific Junction, Iowa.

Mr. Truman thanked them warmly.

"It certainly is a compliment to me," he said. "I don't think I ever had a happier birthday."

The rain came down in drenching torrents when the President arrived at Lincoln for his main speech of the day.

Mr. Truman invited the Lincoln crowd of 10,000 to take cover. The throng began to melt before the speech was well started but about a fourth of them stuck it out to the end.

The President said he had to make the speech anyway "for the record," to convince newsmen he "had nerve enough to make it in the rain." Despite the stormy weather, Republican Gov. Val Peterson showed up on the speakers' stand, with Democratic Mayor Clarence Miles to welcome Mr. Truman.

"I told Governor Peterson I was certain this rain was more welcome than the President," Truman told the rained-out crowd. "He said we both were welcome."

He first struck his fighting stance in a rear-platform speech to a crowd of 7000 at Galesburg, Ill., against the backdrop of one of the tightest senatorial contests of the 1950 campaign. He told the cheering crowd isolationism not only is "cheap"—it is playing Soviet Russia's game.

It was his lead-off speech of the day and it pretty well set the tone of his cross-country tour.

"There is nothing mysterious about it," he told the band-playing, placard-carrying crowd.

"I am not running for office. I am merely making a report to the citizens on what has happened since you honored me by making me President. I have a perfect right to do that."

It was his sixty-sixth birthday and Mr. Truman made it a dual celebration by noting it was also the fifth anniversary of VE-Day.

He "poured it on" again before a crowd of 20,000 just over the Illinois line at Burlington, Iowa (population 40,000). Here again he protested that his trip was not "political," but merely a "report" any head of any organization would make.

He said he was going to come

240 Pilgrims From District Given Audience at Vatican

Washington Archdiocese pilgrims to Rome had an audience yesterday with Pope Pius XII. The Holy Father personally thanked Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle for his relief work toward Europeans. Miss Kathryn E. Bowers, hostess for the 240 Washington pilgrims, kissed the Pope's hand. Miss Bowers describes the audience in a cable received by The Washington Post last night. Miss Bowers is public relations assistant for the Hamilton National Bank. She lives at 215 B st. ne.

Vatican City, May 8

Dear Reader:

Pope Pius XII today gave the most thrilling audience of his reign (so it seemed to us) because we, pilgrims from the Archdioese of Washington, were there.

It is not possible to share with you the glory of it. You must be present yourselves, under the dome of St. Peter's, to appreciate what I mean. Words cannot describe the experience of seeing, face to face, the Vicar of Christ on earth.

We took special buses from our hotels this morning and met in St. Peter's square at 10:30 a. m. Most of our group wore the prescribed costume—black dress with lace headcovering.

An Amazing Audience

After having our picture taken, we were led along a pathway to the door at the left side of the main altar. This was the moment we began to realize that our group of 240 pilgrims was to share an audience with 29,760 others!

Of these, 10,000 were pilgrims from Spain, honoring St. Anthony Maria Claret, whose canonization took place Sunday.

We noticed the dais, where the Pope would sit during the audience, erected in front of the main altar and facing the center door. Our Washington pilgrims were greatly honored by being seated in the front row in a circle surrounding the altar and dais.

Directly in front of the dais to the right were our priests, led by His Excellency, Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle. I was most fortunate in being in the same position on the left.

The thousands behind were standing back of a 4-foot wooden

Names of 200 Perverts Listed For Firing by U. S. Agencies

By Jerry Kluttz

The names of about 200 sex perverts in Government jobs here—men and women alike—have been turned over to their employing agencies by the Civil Service Commission.

Many of them either have been or will be fired as unsuited for Government work.

The drive against the homosexuals was set off when State Department officials revealed they had fired 91 of them over the past several years. The District Subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee whose chairman is Senator Hill (D., Ala.) began an inquiry of perverts here on a city-wide basis.

Washington police officials are reported to have told the subcommittee that there were an estimated 3000 perverts here, and that most of them were employed by the Government.

This piece of intelligence reached top Federal officials and a purge of perverts from Government rolls was agreed on. The FBI gathered a list of known and suspected homosexuals in Government and turned it over to Civil Service. Civil Service, in turn, referred the names to the employing agencies for appropriate action. A top official commented yesterday:

"Our check showed that there is nothing like 3000 or even 1000 of these unfortunates in the Federal service here. We have the names of more than 200 but some of them are no longer in Government."

Civil Service has the authority to force the firings of sex perverts who don't have regular Civil Service status, and those who might have failed to list arrests for perversion even if they have status. It's reliably reported to have used

Black Alone Dissents In 5-1 Vote Against 'Political Strikes'; Curb on Beliefs Hit

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The non-Communist oath provision of the Taft-Hartley labor law was held constitutional by the Supreme Court yesterday.

But in doing so the court went far beyond a ruling on its validity to etch out in many ways the power of the Federal Government to control communism and the American Communist Party. The 30,000 or more words handed down in four separate opinions left no doubt that the justices have been keen students of the daily papers as well as of legal precedents.

Chief Justice Vinson read the Court's controlling opinion in a ruling joined in its entirety by Justices Reed and Burton and partially by Justices Frankfurter and Jackson. Justice Black was the lone dissenter. Justices Douglas, Clark and Minton took no part in the case (Douglas was in a hospital and Minton had not yet ascended the bench when the two cases were heard last October and Clark, as Attorney General, had begun their prosecution).

Court in 5-1 Split

Thus a 5-to-1 split of the court upheld the right of Congress to require labor union officials (of unions making use of the National Labor Relations Board's services) to swear that they are not members of the Communist Party.

But only a 3-to-3 split upheld the lower court ruling that Congress could also require that part of the oath wherein the labor union leader swears "he does not believe in, and is not a member of or supports any organization that believes in or teaches the overthrow of the United States Government by force or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods."

Involved were the CIO's United Steel Workers and its American Communications Association, one of the unions being purged for following the Communist Party line. Neither would comment last night.

70 Affidavits Checked

Of the Nation's important labor leaders only John L. Lewis has refused to sign the oath and he has assidulously avoided the labor board anyway. Hence the decision's practical effect is quite limited except that the NLRB has turned over to the Justice Department affidavits of some 70 persons to check for possible perjury. Justice is still investigating.

Vinson reasoned that Congress, under the interstate commerce power, used the oath in an attempt "to prevent political strikes" and that just such strikes are the Communist aim in infiltrating labor union leadership. In so doing, the Chief Justice declared, Congress was not acting against either groups or beliefs and it left the great majority of

Realtors' Fee Fixing Policy Ruled Illegal

In a 6-to-1 decision, the Supreme Court yesterday ruled the anti-trust laws cover local real estate agents and therefore the Washington Real Estate Board has acted illegally in fixing prices charged customers.

Justice Douglas read the court's opinion, concurred in by Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Black, Reed, Burton and Minton. Justice Jackson dissented. Justices Frankfurter and Clark took no part.

The "critical question," Douglas declared, was whether a real estate agent was engaged in "trade" within the antitrust prohibition against combinations "in restraint of trade or commerce."

Said Douglas: "Members of the Washington Board are entrepreneurs. Some are individual proprietors; others are banks or corporations. Some may have no employes; others have large staffs. But each is in business on his own. The fact that the business involves the sale of personal services rather than commodities does not take it out of the category of 'trade' within the meaning of . . . the (Sherman Anti-Trust) Act.

"The act was aimed at combinations organized and directed to control of the market by suppression of competition 'in the marketing of goods and services.'"

While the court upheld the Government's case against the Washington Board (and 15 of its members named defendants as a class

Wind Snaps Pole, Acrobat Hurtled 98 Feet to Death

Amesbury, Mass., May 8 (U.P.).—A German refugee was hurtled to his death today when the 98-foot pole atop which he performed as an acrobat snapped in high winds.

Jerry Wierzcki, 26, billed as "the Great Del Orte," was preparing for his first American performance after coming to this country from London two months go as a displaced person.

He was helping to erect the slender pole at Amesbury Municipal Park and had climbed to the top to make sure it was in proper condition. Strong winds bent the pole and then snapped it. Wierzcki fell about 60 feet to his death.

Wierzcke leaves a wife and 22-month-old son in London.

Slot Machines Ordered Out Of Pentagon

Removal of slot machines from the Pentagon Officers' Athletic Club Saturday may be the Defense Department's first move in a country-wide crackdown on gambling in military installations, it was indicated last night.

Orders for the removal reportedly came from Secretary of Defense Johnson's office, club members said, suggesting that the move is not one of merely local scope which could have been handled by the military police.

In the Washington area there are 11 military installations with clubs, all of which are reputed to have gambling machines.

Pentagon sources say the recently passed Senate bill, banning the interstate shipment of gambling devices and prohibiting their operation on Federal property, is the Defense Department's motivation for the act.

Chief type of gambling devices used in the area NCO and Officers' clubs are the one-armed bandit and payoff pinball machines. In most clubs the money is used for upkeep and social activities, club officials claim.

House Unit Calls Lewis in Ouster Of Union Official

Representative Jacobs (D., Ind.) said yesterday he has ordered a subpena issued for John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers head, to appear at a House Labor Subcommittee meeting next Monday at 7 p. m.

The subcommittee, headed by Jacobs, is investigating "un-American practices in labor unions."

Jacobs said subpenas also will be issued for Lloyd H. Sidener, Canton, Ill., who was removed as head of his local UMW union, and for Bernard Beasley, a member of the board of the Canton union.

"We want to know whether Sidener was thrown out of his job through undemocratic and unfair procedures," Jacobs told a reporter. "Reports that I receive indicate that he was."

Jacobs said his information is that Sidener was deposed as union head after claiming that Lewis used a system of secret signals or orders to keep miners on strike during the recent shutdown in the bituminous coal fields.

Apathy Prevails as First Phase Of Senate FEPC Fight Opens

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday drifted listlessly into its annual mock battle—whether or not to consider a measure establishing a Federal Fair Employment Practices Commission.

The only thing so far distinguishing this year's version of the perennial from those of previous years was its complete apathy—much of the time there were only three or four Senators on the floor.

The proposal—S 1728—to set up an FEPC to prevent discrimination in hiring because of race, color, religion or national origin—is not yet before the Senate.

The debate was on the motion to bring the matter up for discussion.

And its turgid quality was a recognition that everything that could be said on the issue had been said many times before. Even Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.), leader of the usually fiery Southern opposition to the measure, obviously found it impossible to work up any steam back of his oratory.

Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas of Illinois had already announced his intention to let the oratory go on for a week without any attempt to break the traditional filibuster in the only way

Potomac Highway Bridge Opening Ceremony Today

The new Highway Bridge, spanning the Potomac near the Jefferson Memorial, will be opened to traffic today after ceremonies at noon.

Miss Mary Jane Hayes, Miss Washington of 1949, will cut the ribbon officially placing the bridge in use.

Miss Hayes will ride in the first car to cross the new bridge. She will be escorted by District Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) and Charles M. Upham, chairman of the District's Motor Vehicle Parking Agency.

The ceremony to be held on the Washington approach will be preceded by a concert at 11:30 a. m. by the Metropolitan Police Department band and quartet.

Upham, who will act as master of ceremonies, will describe the history of the bridge. Other speakers include John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners; General Young, the Engineer Commissioner, under whose direction the bridge was planned, and Representative Smith.

The new bridge will be open only to northbound traffic. As soon as the new bridge is put into use the present two-way Highway Bridge will become a one-way bridge for southbound traffic only.

Road Heads Back Ban on Rail Strikes

Presidents of three of the Nation's top railroads yesterday urged approval of a bill to outlaw rail strikes and require compulsory arbitration as a last resort in railroad disputes.

They were Walter S. Franklin of the Pennsylvania, Gustav Metzman of the New York Central and F. G. Gurley of the Santa Fe.

Railway labor leaders meanwhile denounced the bill in a statement as employing the "techniques of fascism and communism." They will testify later.

An official of the Association of American Railroads asked that all three witnesses be permitted to testified yesterday so they could hurry back to their offices in view of a firemen's strike scheduled for Wednesday.

This walkout has been called against several major lines by the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen because of their refusal to add a third man on big diesel locomotives.

The executives testified before a Senate Labor Subcommittee in support of a bill by Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) to make strikes and lockouts illegal in railway labor disputes.

They cited the threatened firemen's strike as an example of one which should be prevented by remedial legislation.

Two presidential emergency fact-finding boards have rejected the demand for an extra fireman on diesels. The railroad presidents cited this in support of their argument that rail labor organizations will not accept recommendations of such boards but will threaten walkouts in the expectation of winning greater benefits.

The unions say an extra fireman is needed as a safety measure.

The statement by the Railway Labor Executives Association said that there is no problem in the dispute that cannot be "resolved by genuine bargaining."

"The real difficulty," it said, "is that the managements are always looking to the government to bail them out."

The witnesses said they would not have agreed to support compulsory arbitration a few years ago.

Metzman said both railway management and labor knew that recommendations of presidential boards were not binding but he insisted both sides formerly believed that railroad strikes were "unthinkable."

The labor groups no longer have this view, he said, and therefore legislation along the lines of the Donnell Bill is required.

The labor leaders' statement said that the workers kept strikes to a minimum. They accused the railroads of making no offers or concessions in bargaining

Philadelphia, May 8 (AP).—The AFL said again today it is willing to meet with the CIO and draw up plans for permanent merger of both organizations.

But President William Green of the AFL made it clear in a letter to President Philip Murray of the CIO that unity must be on "a permanent and organic basis" and "not merely upon a tentative and cooperative basis."

Green's letter, disclosed at a news conference that followed a closed session of the AFL's executive council, replied to Murray's written request for establishment of a labor unity committee.

The CIO chieftain also asked John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers, the International Association of Machinists, and the four independent Railroad Brotherhoods to join the "unity" effort.

Specifically, Murray asked the AFL and the other unions to set up a group that would provide joint cooperation on economic, legislative and political problems.

Green said the AFL's executive council "doubts seriously that the method and procedure suggested and proposed in your letter would accomplish the mutually desired objective: organic unity in the labor forces of America."

But, Green wrote, the AFL was willing to try.

"The executive council has, by unanimous decision, authorized and directed me to advise you and your organization that we are prepared to select a committee to meet a like committee of the CIO to engage in a conference looking toward an early and successful realization of unity upon a permanent and secure basis between our respective organizations," the AFL president wrote.

Murray, in Atlantic City, N. J., for the opening Tuesday of the CIO-United Steelworkers convention, said "I wouldn't want to comment until I read his (Green's) letter."

This is not the first time that Murray sought cooperation between CIO and AFL. In 1947 committees of the two powerful labor groups—AFL 8 million-strong; the CIO 6 million — failed to reach agreement.

Green insisted on complete organic unity—merger of the two groups into one union.

Murray wanted only functional unity, arguing that the two groups should first cooperate within a committee before final merger.

In effect, Green's letter to Murray today restates the old AFL principle of permanent unity—or nothing.

At a separate meeting for the Pennsylvania branch of the AFL, Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) set the pattern for the Democrats' 1950 political strategy by hailing the deeds of the Democratic-controlled Eighty-first Congress as "a miracle."

He called the Republican Party a "party of slogans and promises," the Democrats a party of "pledges and performances."

Non-Communist Oath Wins In Ruling by Supreme Court

Communists free from restraint. In short, Congress was not seeking to prevent "dissemination of Communist doctrine or the holding of particular beliefs because it is feared that unlawful action will result therefrom if free speech is practiced."

Vinson said the oath is not aimed at "the suppression of dangerous ideas" nor is it a possible instrument of arbitrary suppression of views. But, he went on, the public can be legally protected within the Constitution "from present excesses of direct, active conduct" by Communists.

Force Must be Met by Force

"Speech may be fought with speech," Vinson said. "Falsehoods and fallacies must be exposed, not suppressed, unless there is not sufficient time to avert the evil consequences of noxious doctrine by argument and education . . . But force may and must be met with force. (The oath) is designed to protect the public not against what Communists and others identified therein advocate or believe but against what Congress has concluded they have done and are likely to do again."

And he also declared:

"To encourage unions to displace them (Communists) from positions of great power over the national economy, while at the same time leaving free the outlets by which they may pursue legitimate political activities of persuasion and advocacy, does not seem to us to contravene the purposes of the First Amendment (guaranteeing free speech). That Amendment requires that one be permitted to believe what he will. It requires that one be permitted to advocate what he will unless there is a clear and present danger that a substantive evil will result therefrom.

"It does not require that he be permitted to be the keeper of the arsenal."

Replies To 3 Justices

Vinson's opinion was replete with references in answer to those of Black, Frankfurter and Black where these three split with Vinson on the part of the oath concerning a union official's beliefs.

Jackson wrote a lengthy review of the Communist Party as being "something different in fact from any other substantial party we have known and hence it may constitutionally be treated as something different in law." He called it "a conspiratorial and revolutionary junta" beholden to the Soviet Union, a "satrap party" which includes the "threat of betrayal" of this Nation "into alien hands."

Jackson said he felt Congress could, on conspiracy principles, "charge each member with responsibility for the goals and means" of the Communist Party.

But he refused to approve the oath on beliefs because it "demands revelation and denial of mere beliefs or opinions, even when they may never have matured into any act whatever or even been given utterance."

Refers to Heresy Trials

"Attempts of the courts," Jackson went on, "to fathom modern political meditations of an accused would be as futile and mischievious as the efforts in the infamous heresy trials of old to fathom religious beliefs."

And he added:

"The priceless heritage of our society is the unrestricted constitutional right of each member to think as he will. Thought control is a copyright of totalitariasm . . . It is not the function of our Government to keep the citizen from falling into error; it is the function of the citizen to keep the Government from falling into error."

Frankfurter likewise struck at the belief clause of the oath as beyond the power of Congress. He said Congress has no right to "probe into opinions" and to invade "the inner life of men whose compassionate thought or doctrinaire hopes may be as far removed from any dangerous kinship with the Communist creed as were those of the founders of the present orthodox political parties in this country."

Test Oaths Foes of Free Thought

Black said flatly that the majority decision "rejects" the fundamental principle that "beliefs are inviolate." Test oaths, he contended, whether religious, political or both "are implacable foes of free thought."

He chastised Vinson for declaring that "while this Court sits" it will not approve the unlimited power of government in forcing disclosure of attitudes on all types of social, economic, moral and political issues. Said Black:

"Never before has this Court held that the Government could for any reason attain persons for their political beliefs or affiliations. It does so today."

Black and Jackson exchanged words over "guilt by association." Black said "guilt should not be imputed solely from association or affiliation with political parties or any other organization, however much we abhor the ideas which they advocate."

Jackson came back with:

". . . there has recently entered the dialectic of politics a cliche used to condemn application of the conspiracy principle to Communists. 'Guilt by association' is an epithet frequently used and little explained, except that is is generally accompanied by another slogan, 'guilt is personal.' Of course it is; but personal guilt may be incurred by joining a conspiracy."

Business Expansion Aid Asked

The United States Chamber of Commerce called on the Government yesterday to create a "favorable atmosphere for business expansion" as one way to make jobs for the 11,500 new workers it estimated join the labor force every week.

In a handbook called "Investment for Jobs," the chamber reckoned that every year some 600,000 Americans are added to the number of persons employed or seeking work.

It estimated that by 1970 the Nation's industry will have to find jobs for 78 million workers, if there is to be full employment.

"This means that month after month an average of some 50,000 new jobs must be created," the pamphlet said. "It means that week after week an average of 11,500 jobs must be found. Only if American business is dynamic and progressive will these jobs develop at a satisfactory rate."

To be dynamic, the chamber said, a business needs new investments. But it can't get them, said the hanbook, if:

1. "A militant aggressive labor union backed by Government" creates uneconomic costs and inefficient methods.

2. "The Government subjects the business to a plethora of rules, regulations and directives."

3. "The Government subsidizes competitors, or enters into business operation itself, or even threatens to do so."

4. The Government takes too much of the firm's income for taxes.

Senators Told RFC Lost on Loan Business

A Senate expert said yesterday the Government lost $6,448,000 in the year ended last June 30 on lending activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

RFC officials countered that these operations "were on a substantially better than break-even basis." From there on there was an argument over accounting methods—whether the Senate investigators or the RFC used the right ones.

A Senate Banking Subcommittee started an investigation of RFC yesterday, mainly to find out whether it has been making its lending program as nearly self-sustaining as possible.

Theodore Herz, subcommittee staff director, said the Government lost the $6,448,000 on RFC lending in the last fiscal year whereas the agency reported a $5,226,000 profit. He added that a loss resulted because RFC uses without cost money the Treasury borrows and pays interest on.

In the nine months ended in March, Herz said RFC showed a 6 million-dollar profit rather than a 4 million-dollar loss only because it sold some securities and made a capital gain.

But RFC Chairman Harley Hise said that in the last fiscal year RFC lending activities showed a profit of $1,345,185, after providing reserves for uncollectible accounts. And for the first nine months of the present fiscal year, he said, the profit was $8,600,000.

J. E. Considine, RFC comptroller, told the committee Herz used an incorrect concept in figuring that in the last fiscal year the Treasury paid some $11,674,000 interest on money used cost-free by RFC.

D. C. Loses Suit Asking $37,000 on Plant Job

The District government yesterday lost its United States Court of Appeals fight of nine years to collect $37,000 from a contractor installing pumps at the Sewage Treatment Plant at Blue Plains.

The decision was in favor of John H. Bopst, jr., of Baltimore, who had agreed in 1941 to install the works for $28,000.

The District maintains that Bopst's pumps did not meet specifications and that the Worthington Pump and Machinery Co. had to be hired to complete the job for $65,000.

Spending Cut of $750 Millions Is Proposed

A move to chop 750 million dollars from the 29-billion-dollar omnibus appropriation bill by directing the President to make that much of a cut was started yesterday by Representative Thomas (D., Tex.).

Thomas is a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

He said he would offer an amendment providing that the President, through the Budget Bureau, distribute the reduction among the various Federal agencies.

However, the amendment would prohibit the President from cutting any funds for military activities, including atomic weapon development and scientific research and development.

Some leading Republicans previously had opposed suggestions that Congress direct the President to make the reductions. They said such a procedure would be "buck passing."

A vote on Thomas' amendment may be reached by the House Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the House approved the $630,820,000 civil functions section of the one-package appropriation bill yesterday. It first rejected a score of amendments to hike the total provided for waterway projects.

The bill carries $599,145,000 for numerous flood control and rivers and harbors projects. This is $199,337,000 below President Truman's budget recommendations.

The total of $630,820,000, including funds for cemeteries, the Alaska communications system, the Panama Canal, and other Army Engineer civil functions in addition to waterways work, compares with budget requests of $834,867,500.

Repeated attempts were made to add waterways projects or increase allowances for others but an economy bloc beat back every attempt.

In fact, the only amendment the House accepted in five hours of debate was to reduce the bill a total of $1,800,000.

The House accepted one by Representativ Sutton (D., Tnn.), to eliminate $1,800,000 for Cheatham lock and dam on the Cumberland River in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Urgent Action to Aid Europe Trade Asked

The Economic Cooperation Administration said yesterday that unless the United States takes "extraordinary action" Western Europe may never earn enough dollars to be indepentdnt of United States aid.

Marshall Plan nations trying to sell goods in this country, the recovery agency said, "are still meeting formidable obstacles in the form of competition from American producers in the United States, high tariffs, and administrative hindrances to imports."

These barriers, ECA added, may be "so formidable as to set practical limits on the ability of the European countries to enlarge their dollar earnings.

"Those limits may well make it impossible for Europeans to attain the volume of exports necessary to maintain essential imports and to bridge the dollar gap to the point of becoming independent of United States aid."

The agency outlined this situation in a report to Congress covering the last three months of 1949. It was submitted by President Truman with a brief, routine message.

Meanwhile President Truman yesterday proclaimed the week starting May 21 as World Trade Week, asking Federal, State and local officials to cooperate in the observance.

Expanding trade among the nations adds strength to the domestic economy, his proclamation said, by "helping to maintain production and employment at high levels and by providing diversity of products to American consumers."

Mr. Truman said this country is aiming at the expansion of international trade through lowering of tariffs and other barriers to commerce, and "the elimination of discriminatory treatment of goods in international commerce."

The ECA report summarized steps being taken by European countries to deal with export problems.

U. S. Action Held Heeded

"All these measures," it said, "are extraordinary in that they require active Government intervention to favor exporters who wish to compete in the American market. The dollar gap, however, will not be reduced without extraordinary action by the United States as well."

The report also dealt with trade barriers still existing between the Marshall Plan countries themselves. It said revival of industrial and agricultural production and easing of payments problems has created a "favorable economic atmosphere" for further reducing these barriers and restoring more competitive markets.

By the end of 1949, the ECA countries had removed quota restrictions on items representing about 50 percent of their 1948 imports on private account from other countries.

"These trade liberalizations, however, are only a beginning," the report continued.

fired on by United States Navy ships."

Young's press statement was headed "Soviet Union Aggression" and declared that "war is being waged against us by the Soviet Union." It went on:

"Submarines have been reconnoitering our radar defenses in Alaska and further south on our West Coast. If it is a fact that one of our warships engaged a strange submarine and sank it with depth bombs, a policy of silence is in contrast with Soviet policy."

He referred to the recent Russian announcement—in a note of protest—that their planes had fired on an American aircraft which it said was over Latvia. The USSR said the United States plane had fired first and they had returned the fire.

Return Protest by U. S.

In a return note of protest, this country declared the airplane had been destroyed by the Russians over the Baltic Sea, killing 10 Americans, well outside Soviet territory and that as it had been unarmed could not have fired on the USS warplane.

A reporter asked Young if his reference to a possible dephtcombing of a submarine by American warships referred to "something you believe may have happened within the past six months."

The Congressman nodded but refused any further comment.

Young said that since "the Soviet Union has arbitrarily set up a 20 mile limit for its shore defenses," he felt we should claim complete jurisdiction over all our territorial waters out to 20 instead of three miles.

Russians Sending Plane for Lie's Flight to Moscow

Geneva, May 8 (AP).—United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie will fly to Moscow from Prague Thursday in a special plane put at his disposal by the Soviet government, it was announced today.

Lie arrived in Geneva Saturday to attend today's opening of the third annual assembly of the World Health Organization.

"The time has come for all who work for peace and who believe in peace to join in new efforts to bring the cold war to an end," he told the assembly.

Nearly all the Soviet bloc countries have walked out of WHO during the past year. Their seats remained empty during Lie's address.

Lie will fly to Prague Wednesday and will spend about 24 hours in the Czech capital.

self government for the three Indo-Chinese regimes within the French union.

The United States, he said, "considers the situation to be such as to warrant its according economic aid and military equipment to the associated states of Indo-China and to France in order to assist peaceful and democratic development."

Agreement on Germany

Well-informed sources said Acheson and Schuman, in their discussions on Germany, reached agreement on what would amount to a preliminary peace treaty with the Bonn government. Their accord, of course, is subject to British approval. It embraced a revision of the occupation statute in October and more liberal interpretations of the present statute until then.

Schuman was described as adamant against rearming the Germans or easing military controls. He was said to be opposed to letting the Germans form a military organization of any kind.

He insisted, also, on the Ruhr international authority being put on a functioning basis. He was represented as feeling that the authority which is supposed to supervise operations and output of coal and steel in the rich basin exists in name only.

Acheson and Schuman ended their talks at 5:45 p. m. and then were guests of Premier Bidault. Acheson shifts his conversations to London on Thursday.

Splinters Begin to Fly as Model Ship Is 'Christened'

The Washington Post

West to Relax Some Controls In Germany

Bonn, Germany, May 8 (AP).—The Western Allies relaxed controls on German industries today, reasonably confident the Germans will not use their industrial strength again to rearm.

Under a new anti-rearmament law published by the Allied High Commission in West Germany, some of the control functions were turned over to the Germans themselves.

"We are quite optimistic over the degree of German cooperation to be expected," said Maj. Gen. James P. Hodges American chairman of the Allied Security Board set up to enforce Germany's disarmament. "We are accepting in good faith the assurances we have received from the Germans."

Reminded by a newsman of what happened after the last war, General Hodges said:

"We are not approaching this with our eyes closed. We are fully aware of what happened before and we are watching for any signs of a repetition."

The announcement said the new law aims at giving the Allies a tight grip over German activities which might pose a genuine threat of rearmament.

The law becomes effective June 1. It coordinates into one document previous separate American, British and French regulations on German disarmament and demilitarization.

munists tried to extend their celebration to the western sectors.

Police dispersed a crowd of about 350 and arrested 4 in a mild skirmish at Anhalter railroad station in the American sector.

While Communists laid wreaths on Red army monuments, a former paratrooper who deserted from the East Zone people's police testified in an American court that four specially schooled units had been shifted to Berlin for the projected May 28 youth march on the city. He said the units comprised 1000 men.

The witness was Werner Pellmann, 23, who said his Leipzig unit was told, "Policemen from Saxony would be better able to finish off the Berliner."

He was testifying in the trial of six members of the people's police arrested in the American zone on April 13 on charges of wearing uniforms and carrying arms in violation of four-power laws.

Pellmann said he quit the force because it was "no different" from the wartime army in which he served.

70-Mile Wind Lashes Battened-Down Guam

Honolulu, May 8 (AP).—Rock-ribbed Guam was hit today by the second typhoon in six months. Howling 70-mile-an-hour winds and whipping rains lashed the island.

"Everything battened down. Everything holding so far. We expect to weather the storm with a minimum amount of damage."

International Trade Exhibit Launched at Georgetown U.

Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service yesterday launched its "international exhibit" with speeches and a "ship's christening" by the queen of the show, Ann Thornett.

Miss Thornett, 19-year-old sophomore in the Foreign Service School and daughter of Geoffrey Thornett, secretary of the District Commissioners, swung the bottle twice on the prow of a craft built by Georgetown naval reservists.

That the bottle didn't break and the prow begin to splinter did not delay the opening of the show, which features 92 exhibits from embassies, transportation companies and importers.

The christening in the flag and bunting-draped annex quadrangle of the Foreign Service School, 37th and O sts. nw., followed addresses by five speakers in Gaston Hall, on the campus, formally opening the show.

The speakers included The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., regent of the school; Louis P. Pate, president of the Propeller Club of the United States; Richard P. Butrick, director of the Foreign Service of the United States and an alumnus of the school; Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, and the French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet.

Four other speakers appeared in a transportation panel that followed the "launching" of the exhibit. These later speakers included Rear Admiral A. J. Welling, U. S. N., vice commander, Military Sea Transportation Service; Captain Roy L. Raney, U. S. Coast Guard, assistant chief of the Office of Merchant Marine Safety; Donald E. Crum, Washington manager of British Overseas Airways Corp., and Walter H. Johnson, regional vice president, American Airlines.

"South America Day" will be observed from 5 to 7 p. m. today with addresses by William Manger, Secretary General, Organization of American States, and others, and a display of South American fashions, costumes and dances.

The Georgetown exhibit, which precedes the Washington Board of Trade world trade committee's exhibit of importable goods at the Department of Commerce next week, is open to the public.

barrier, which was supposed to keep the crowd in check.

The enthusiasm of the Spanish pilgrims was impossible to imagine. Throughout the basilica they were constantly singing and cheering. When trumpets sounded the entrance of the Holy Father, they madly waved paper flags of yellow and white, the papal colors. Every place you could see, they were waving.

Before the Pope's entrance, each group was led in its own language in prayers. Our own Father Charles Roach, pastor of the Church of the Assumption, led, in English, the Lord's Prayer, the Hail Mary and the Glory-Be-to-the-Father.

His Holiness, completely in white, was borne in on the "sedia gestatoria" by 12 attendants garbed in bright red brocade. He constantly leaned over to either side of the center aisle and blessed us. The Swiss guards, in colorful costumes, stood at attention in the immediate area of the dais.

Greeted by Spanish Roars

As soon as the Pope ascended the dais and sat in his gold chair, he began to speak in a clear, strong voice to the Spanish pilgrims. After talking to them for about 10 minutes, exhorting them to emulate their new saint, he read the names of various provinces represented. Roar after roar went up from each group.

His Holiness then spoke to the French, American, English, and German pilgrims in their respective languages. In English, he told he was very happy we had come to St. Pter's, that it was a "magnificent thing" to make a pilgrimage. He then gave his blessing to all present and to their loved ones at home.

When he finished addressing us, the Pope quickly descended from the dais and went directly to Archbishop O'Boyle, placing his hand on his shoulder and thanking him for the "wonderful assistance" of the American people in war relief.

All our priests gathered around and were able to greet His Holiness. Sister Mary Jerome, principal of Our Lady of Lourdes School, Bethesda, Md., also had this wonderful privilege.

A Wonderful Privilege

Then the Pope came over to the other side of the aisle and I had the wonderful privilege of kissing his left hand. All were respectfully clamoring to touch, in some manner, the successor of St. Peter.

His Holiness was most generous in reaching out his hands to all nearby, always being protected by Swiss guards.

Everyone in the basilica was wild with joy and kept shouting, "Viva il Papa." Then he returned to the sedia gestatoris and was borne out of St. Peter's.

In all, the audience lasted about one hour. It was an hour that will never be forgotten and never surpassed in glory and privilege.

KATHRYN E. BOWERS.

Liaquat Ali Disapproves Hoover Plan

New York, May 8 (AP).—Liaquat Ali Khan, Prime Minister of Pakistan, said today former President Hoover's proposal to reorganize the United Nations so as to exclude Communist countries would defeat the purposes of the world peace organization.

The visiting statesman told a news conference:

"To me it seems that the purposes of the U. N. is to see that all problems of the world should be settled only by peaceful means. This purpose can be served only if all countries are in the United Nations."

Hoover made his reorganization proposal in a speech at a recent meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The Pakistan prime minister toured United Nations headquarters at Lake Success, and urged an early U. N. plebiscite to settle the Moslem-Hindu claim to Kashmir. The vote would determine whether the Kashmiri favored joining Pakistan or India. He said a plebiscite is the only fair and impartial way of solving the dispute.

The prime minister declined comment when asked whether his country would withdraw from the U. N. if Hoover's reorganization proposal ever was implemented.

Eban Hints Israel Action On Arab Arms

A strong hint that Israel may present its charges of Arab rearmament to the United Nations Security Council was given last night by Aubrey Eban, Israel's representative to the U. N.

Speaking on the Town Hall program at Constitution Hall, Eban declared the Arab states "feverishly rearm, indulge in hostile propaganda against Israel, refuse any contact with Israel for the purpose of a final peace settlement and maintain an illicit blockade and boycott."

Eban said Israel is trying to deal now with the governments concerned on the issue, but continued heavy rearmament and refusal to negotiate peace would force Israel to call in the "scrutiny of world opinion and of the highest international organs" on the Arab policies.

Chiang Asks for U. S. Aid, U. N. Sanctions Against Russia

Taipei, Formosa, May 8 (U.P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek called today for sanctions against Russia and asked the United States for aid to match Soviet help to the Chinese Communists.

With United States support, Chiang said, the Nationalists could defend their island base of Formosa, eventually recapture the mainland and halt the spread of international communism in southeast Asia.

Chiang, in a two-hour conference with visiting American newspapermen, said these factors would prevent the outbreak of a third world war in the Far East.

China has called Russia an "aggressor nation" in the United Nations; Russia has walked out of many U. N. groups in protest against the presence of Nationalist delegates. Chiang said today the U. N. would be taking a "big step" in approving a "just" resolution against Russia in the U. N. China case—a resolution calling for sanctions.

"In view of the fact the Soviet Russians are giving assistance to the Chinese Reds," he said, "any U. S. military aid should match the military assistance the Russians are giving the Chinese Communists. We do not expect more from the United States than the Soviets are giving the Communists."

Nationalist government spokesman in official statements said Russia was furnishing jet planes to the Communists as well as other planes and equipment, that Russia turned over former Japanese destroyers and destroyer escorts to the Peiping government and sent thousands of radio, air force, radar, naval, artillery and other technicians to train the Red armed forces.

Miss Bentley Denies Making Retraction

Flanders' Idea

Secret Quiz On Loyalty Is Proposed

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) yesterday asked the Senate to order that its investigation of Communist infiltration in the State Department proceed henceforth in nonpublic sessions.

The present lines of the investigation, which has been run off principally in public sessions, is hurting the morale of "able and conscientious public servants" and "causing astonishment and uncertainty abroad," Flanders told the Senate.

He offered a resolution that would require the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating charges brought by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), to proceed in the future in executive session.

The resolution also called on the subcommittee to study present loyalty procedures in Federal departments.

In his statement, Flanders noted that he has long been disturbed by State Department policy.

Earlier yesterday, the investigating subcommittee canceled a meeting scheduled to provide the first look at the State Department files on McCarthy's 81 cases. It was stated that the files were not assembled for handing over.

New York, May 8 (AP).—Counsel for Elizabeth Bentley said today she "violently opposed" settlement of a $100,000 libel suit brought against her and others by William W. Remington.

The attorney, Godfrey P. Schmidt, said Miss Bentley had retracted no statements she made about Remington and "would not pay one penny for compromise."

Settlement of the suit out of court was announced last February by Miss Bently's codefendants, the National Broadcasting Company and General Foods Corporation. The suit was settled for a reported $10,000.

Remington, Commerce Department economist, sued after Miss Bentley refused to withdraw publicly a statement charging that he was a member of the Communist Party. She repeated the charge on a television program after having made it before a congressional committee.

Schmidt said that both he and his client strenuously opposed the settlement.

He said that when Miss Bentley's codefendants mentioned the possibility "we immediately stated that Miss Bentley would issue no retraction of any kind, public or private, and she would not pay one penny for compromise.

"Despite this," Schmidt said, "the attorneys for the codefendants eventually and without any further consultation with Miss Bentley or me, announced the settlement. There never was, nor will there be any payment or retraction by Miss Bentley."

Remington was cleared of the Communist charge by the Presidential Loyalty Review Board. A new investigation into his loyalty was launched late last month by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Grand Jury Reported Studying Remington Case

A Federal grand jury is studying the case of William W. Remington, Government economist who is under investigation by the House Un-American Activities Committee, it was learned yesterday.

Justice Department officials refused comment, but it was learned that the department is watching developments before the House committee and that witnesses have been heard by the grand jury. It was stressed that there was no indication of whether an indictment would grow out of the matter.

Nor could it be established whether the grand jury's investigation had anything to do with the unexpected cancellation of a meeting of the House committee today. It had been scheduled to hear a witness in the Remington case.

Chairman John S. Wood (D., Ga.) announced Saturday that a "secret witness" would be called against Remington, who is accused of joining the Communist Party 13 years ago.

But the witness failed to appear. A committee source said "it now seems that the subpena was not served."

Wood refused to identify the witness or to say when the hearing would be resumed.

Two former Communists have told the committee that Remington was a party member in 1936-37 when he was working as a 19-year-old messenger for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Remington repeatedly has denied under oath that he is or ever was a Communist.

Contempt Actions Upheld in Failure to Produce Records

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld contempt of Congress citations against two members of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, Helen R. Bryan and Ernestina G. Fleishman. In the two cases, the Court divided 5-to-2.

Both were convicted of refusing to produce records before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Each was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $500.

The majority opinion in each case was given by Chief Justice Vinson. Justices Black and Frankfurter twice dissented and Justices Douglas and Clark took no part.

Vinson drew a line between the cases and that of former Labor Leader Harold L. Christoffel whose conviction was reversed by the high court last year because the Government did not prove that committee had a quorum, a majority, on hand at the time he committed perjury. Vinson argued that the quorum question made no difference in the two new cases because the offense was failure to produce records and that could have occured by telegram or other means than a personal appearance.

Subpena is Not Invitation

Vinson also noted that the women did not raise the quorum question for years after the offense occurred.

In the Bryan case, Vinson said the Court cannot "condone" a "patent evasion" of the duty of one summoned before a Congressional committee. He said htat a subpoena "has never been treated as a invitation to a game of hare and hounds . . ."

In the Fleishman case, Vinson said the Court was not passing on practices of committees but that the remedy, if any is needed, "is certainly not to destroy the effective operation of all committees . . . A subpoena is a sterile document if its orders may be flouted with impunity."

In a concurring opinion in the Bryan case, Justice Jackson said he felt it was "the duplicate" of the Christoffel case and that the two rules could not stand together. Nonetheless, as of today they do.

Picketing Bans Upheld . . . . . .

In a series of labor cases involving the States of Washington, California and Michigan, the high court upheld bans on picketing by labor unions and others for specific reasons, among them picketing aimed at (a) forcing bosses to compel their workers to join unions, (b) forcing stores to hire Negro clerks in the same proportion as the stores' white and Negro customers, and (c) requiring employers to observe certain closing hours.

But in a fourth labor case the Court struck down a Michigan strike-curbing law on the grounds that it conflicted with the Taft-Hartley Act.

In two of the three picketing cases the Court was unanimous, 8-to-0 while in the third it split 5-to-3. In this latter case the majority was composed of Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Frankfurter, Jackson, Burton and Clark with Justices Black, Reed and Minton dissenting. In the Michigan case the Court again was unanimous. Justice Douglas took no part in the cases.

Other Actions by Court

In other actions during a busy day, the high court:

1. Opened the way for some wartime arms plant workers to press overtime pay claims that might reach 250 million dollars in all by ruling, 5-to-2, that the Fair Labor Standards Act covered the men. Justice Burton spoke for the majority with Justice Frankfurter and Jackson dissenting and Justice Douglas taking no part.

2. Declined to rule on legality of movie censorship in a case growing out of the Memphis Board of Censors' refusal to permit showing of the movie "Curley." The censors turned down the film because it showed Negro and white children playing together and occupying the same school room. The movie firms had asked for a ruling to knock out city and State censorship. Censors now will continue until some other case is brought and accepted for decision by the Court.

Wherry Calls Truman Victim Of Radicals

Republican Senator Wherry of Nebraska accused President Truman last night of "chasing rainbows gaudily painted by alien-minded radical advisers" seeking to put across "spendthrift socialism" in the United States.

Wherry, the Senate GOP floor leader, fired his blast in reply to the first of a series of nine major addresses by Mr. Truman on his 6400-mile cross-country stumping tour.

The Nebraska Senator's 1000-word denunciation of Mr. Truman's program marked the kickoff of a concerted Republican drive to meet all the President's speeches with GOP counterattacks. It is the first time the party has tried the experiment to offset Mr. Truman's "Give 'em hell" stumping tactics.

The Wherry statement denounced the Brannan Plan as "that economic monstrosity carrying fines and jail sentences for farmers who refuse to goose-step upon command of Washington bureauerats."

"Bribery" From Public Funds

"The President," Wherry said, "obviously is playing politics with the farmers' problems, trying to please CIO bosses and Americans for Democratic Action with dirt cheap prices for food and win the farmers' vote with offers of bribery from the public Treasury.

"Even leaders of the President's own party in Congress have spurned the Brannan Plan," he continued. "I challenged advocates of the plan to present it in the Democrat-controlled Senate, and they refused to do so.

"They knew it would be kicked out the window by a thumping majority, but that does not seem to dissuade the President from dangling it before the farmers."

Wherry went on to predict the election of a Republican Congress in November — "a Congress that will cut taxes, cut the national debt and restore constitutional procedures in domestic and foreign affairs."

Lincoln Address "a Dud"

"Mr. President," he declared, "there is still time for you to reverse your ruinous policies and to start winning the cold war. But to do so you will have to break with your alien-minded advisers, who are heading America for a catastrophe with their lavish give-away policies and coddling of Soviet Russia on vital matters.

"But your address (at Lincoln) offers no hope, and in that respect is a complete dud."

Wherry declared that in November "we Republicans are going to see to it that the people have a clear-cut choice between candidates who believe in your spendthrift socialism and who support the American way by which America became great and strong and the last bulwark against communism."

Wherry charged that Mr. Truman is "digging the grave for American agriculture, labor and industry" by his tariff and other international policies.

Truman Assails Opponents of Farm Plan

back and report on what the Democratic Eighty-first Congress had done just as he reported on the Republican Eightieth Congress in 1948, and "let the chips fall where they may." The Eighty-first Congress" has done a lot better than the Eightieth Congress ever did and before it is through it is going to do a lot better than it has done to date," he said.

The element of political pursuit meanwhile added to the campaign atmosphere. Victor Johnston, executive secretary of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, is following this train by chartered plane. The GOP agent first showed up in the crowd at Galesburg. Johnston said he will hand out Republican senatorial replies to Mr. Truman from time to time along the route.

"But I'm here chiefly to see how he (Truman) does it," Johnston told newsmen.

At the very next stop, Ottumwa, Iowa, where another huge crowd cheered him, the President took official note of Johnson's pursuit.

"I'm informed there's a young man working for the opposition and following me on this trip," Mr. Truman said. "I want to tell him that he's perfectly welcome to buy himself a ticket and come along on the train. I hope he has been pleased with these receptions, and reports back to the opposition."

Receives Many Presents

At each stop Mr. Truman loaded aboard tall, frosted birthday cakes and other presents reminiscent of the gifts showered upon him during his 1948 tour.

True, President Truman never called a Republican by name at these early stops, but his speech at Galesburg was as plainly directed at Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Ill.), GOP senatorial opponent of the President's Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas, as if he had named Dirksen.

Dirksen, who supported Administration foreign policies while a member of the House, has swung over toward the Chicago Tribune's isolationist policies in his fight against Lucas.

"These men can't see beyond the end of their noses," said Mr. Truman. "They don't see that isolationism would let the rest of the world be swallowed up by communism. That would certainly bring on a new world war, just as it did in 1939. We reneged in 1921 just as Russia today is doing it with the help of our own isolationists."

At Ottumwa, Iowa, and again at Lincoln he stressed the farmers' stake in the present cold war and named other points in his Fair Deal program.

"A Fair Deal for more people in agriculture and in industry and in housing, health and education will strengthen this country, and make the road to world peace less difficult," he said.

He put in his main Brannan Plan plug at Lincoln in his first major speech in the corn belt. Here the two House GOP leaders were quoted anonymously and unnamed others were accused of "muddying the waters for partisan political advantage."

Speaking from a station-side platform, he urged the Brannan Plan as the only way to correct serious defects in the price support structure and "assure peace and prosperity for ourselves and for the world."

Blames "Foolish Trade Barriers"

He recalled the disastrous farm price collapse of the '20s, blamed it in part on "foolish and futile" international trade barriers, and urged "sensible development of world trade and a healthy economy."

In his veiled slap at Old Guard critics, he charged that development of the present price support system was fought by "the same people whose weird brand of 'statesmanship' brought us to the ow point of 1932."

He said one Congressman denounced an early keystone farm conservation bill as "communistic" and "an attempt to enslave the farmer." Administrative aides said the man he was quoting was Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.).

"They and their kind opposed all the efforts that were made to get the country out of the trouble they had got us into—just as they oppose our efforts to improve things today," the President said.

Says Supports Averted Collapse

Mr. Truman told the farmers our present price-support system helped stave off a postwar collapse but is "not fully satisfactory." The system works all right for products that can be stored by the Government but won't work for perishable crops, he argued.

"It is foolish to have the Government buy and store food that people want to eat now," he said. "It is even worse to have the Government buy food and destroy it, but that sometimes happens under the present program. Everyone knows about the shameful potato situation."

Under the Brannan Plan, Mr. Truman explained, all farm products would go into the market and be consumed. A system of direct production payments to farmers would make up any difference between the average market price and a fair return.

The President told the Lincoln audience the Brannan Plan would serve these four "essential" purposes: 1. Assure the amounts and kinds of farm products that are needed in an expanding economy. 2. Provide a method for using our entire supply of perishable products. 3. Encourage the conservation and wise use of our land and water resources. 4. Give the most support "where it is most needed —that is, to the family-size farm."

Episcopalians Seek to End Racial Curbs

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

The fifty-fifth annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington yesterday approved of work "for the elimination of racial restrictions in our diocese and community."

Passage of a resolution approving the work of the diocesan department of social relations in working toward elimination of restrictions came at the convention meeting at St. John's Church, Bethesda.

Lay and clerical delegates from the 90 parishes and congregations beat down attempts to make the resolution "less controversial" by calling for "promotion of justice and true brotherliness in race relations" instead of for "elimination of racial restrictions."

Both the Rev. Robert S. Trenbath, chairman of the department, and the Rev. Theodore O. Wedel, who presented the resolution, said they would rather have no resolution on racial relations than accept the more general wording.

Attempts to table the resolution and to refer it to a special committee were also defeated.

Mr. Trenbath, rector of Trinity Church, Piney Branch rd. and Dahlia st., explained that the resolution applied to steps to be taken "as our Christian function" in the church and its institutions in the diocese as well as in private and Government agencies.

He said the members of the department "don't believe in revolutionary tactics" and don't expect racial restrictions to be eliminated "tomorrow or the next day," but that they do want to continue to work toward an end of restrictions.

A proposed resolution supporting the department's efforts toward estalishment of home rule for the District was tabled after H. L. Rust, jr., treasurer of the diocese, said the question was largely a political one.

Delegates also passed a resolution voicing opposition to Federal aid to private and parochial schools but added that they were "not opposing all Federally financed social service aids" to such schools.

Total Episcopal constituency in the District of Columbia is 30,187, the Rev. Carter S. Gilliss, rector of Christ Church, 620 G st. se., reported. Of this number, he said, about 21,769 are active members.

Among the active members of the church in the District, he said, women outnumber men 3 to 2, and one third of the active membership is composed of persons under 21.

Apathy Prevails as First Phase of Senate FEPC Battle Opens the Senate rules permit—by a motion for cloture.

The motion to shut off debate will take the vote of 64 Senators. While predictions in an election year are notoriously risky where the supposed vote of minority blocs are at stake, most observers so far have failed to see where the necessary 64 votes will be found.

Taft in NLRB Move

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) has served notice that he will try to have the Senate lay aside the FEPC consideration Thursday to bring up a resolution to veto President Truman's plan to abolish the office of general counsel in the National Labor Relations Board.

The plan will have the effect of law unless rejected by May 23 in either Senate or House.

Southerners also have announced their plans to call up other resolutions rejecting reorganization plans. Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) told the Senate he would call another up Thursday and that the Senate Expenditures Committee would report out a half dozen more today.

Under Senate rules reorganization plans are "highly privileged" matters which can be brought up any time by majority vote.

Lucas to Resist Stampede

Lucas said he would "resist" efforts to stampede the Senate intto laying aside FEPC. He could not avoid recognizing, however, that there is a May 23 deadline on the plans, some of which have heavy opposition.

In the event cloture fails, Lucas is expected to drop the consideration of FEPC legislation and seek to pin the blame politically on Republicans for accepting last year what he termed an "unworkable" cloture rule.

The rule, sponsored by Senate Minority Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), was pushed through by a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats giving the Senate for the first time a method to stop debate against a motion to consider a bill, but it requires a two-thirds vote.

Lucas told reporters he had made no poll of the Senate and was not certain of the outcome of the cloture vote, but noted that absentees might count heavily in the result. Since the rule requires 64 votes, a few absentees may make all the difference.

35 GOP Votes Seen

Republican leaders thought they might muster 35 out of 42 votes on their side of the aisle for cloture, but challenged Lucas to do half as well on his Democratic side.

Russell did not have to take the floor to lead off for the Southerners until three hours and twenty minutes after the Senate met. Lucas himself took more than an hour to complain of the rule under which he was forced to take his seat last week during a loyalty probe debate.

Russell won a laugh when he noted that "non-card-carrying" Southerners were taking up time which would be charged to the filibuster.

Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), of the Labor Committee which reported the bill without recommendation to the Senate last year told the Senate the bill is designed to right a wrong which "fairly shouts for a remedy." The measure was introduced originally by J. Howard McGrath, now attorney general.

The proposal, Thomas said, merely guarantees an "old established right, the right of an equal place in our Democracy for all of its citizens in the matter of consideration for that important element in every man and woman's life, the getting and holding of a job worthy of his talents."

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) insisted that the power of the Federal government to prevent job discrimination is inherent in the Constitution and vital to assure the "equality of opportunity" upon which the American way of life is based.

He emphasized that the New York State FEPC law, after which the Senate bill is patterned, "has worked and is working successfully." Despite its compulsory features, Ives said, the enforcement of the New York law depends upon "conference, conciliation and persuasion."

Russell charged that the proposed bill would set up "an army of thought police" in the United States and ultimately destroy American business.

He argued the bill would make discrimination a crime and punish employers for their "mental attitudes" in hiring and promoting their employes. The bill, he said, is a "legislative monstrosity" based on Russian ideas.

County Group Urges Land Act Passage

The Montgomery County Federation last night urged enactment of pending legislation to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to convey 32 acres of land to the Maryland National Capital Parks and Planning Commission for recreation purposes.

Situated adjacent to the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center at 4700 Norwood dr., Chevy Chase, the property has been used by the Bureau of Animal Husbandry as an experiment station.

Secretary Brannan has said he has no objection to the transfer, proposed in both houses of Congress by Maryland representatives.

American U. Park

More than 100 persons attended the season's final banquet meeting of the American University Park Citizens Association at the Westmoreland Congregational Church, Massachusetts and Western aves. nw., last night.

They heard Watson B. Miller, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, tell of his work, and elected officers for 1950-51 year.

Dr. Daniel B. Lloyd was renamed president. Others elected were; Robert P. Alexander, vice president; Robert H. Lewis, secretary; Mrs. Hazel G. Ryman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Marshall A. Brooke treasurer; Thomas E. Lodge and F. S. Sanford, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Association, and Garland L. Taylor and Kenneth B. Hamilton, delegates to the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations.

Brookland

After several meetings where the pros and cons of District home rule were discussed, the Brookland Citizens Association last night decided to oppose the Kefauver bill.

The group, meeting at 1263 Lawrence st. ne., also named Chester J. Wolf as treasurer, and appointed committee chairmen.

Other legislative action included: (1) favoring the reappointment of James E. Schwab as a member of the District Recreation Board; (2) a vote of confidence for the Recreation Board chairman, Harry S. Wender; and (3) protest of any move to make McKinley Senior High School's pool nonsegregated.

Kalorama Citizens

The Kalorama Citizens Association was told last night at its last meeting until fall that officers in some citizens' groups had refused to sign nonsubversive affidavits.

Fletcher S. Tilton, the association's delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations, said a constitutional amendment has been in effect for more than a year making this mandatory.

As a result of the talk, the Kalorama group passed a resolution asking that the federation make public the names of associations that have not sent in their nonsubversive affidavits. The meeting was held at the Adams School, 19th and California sts. nw.

Garfield-Douglas

A request for the removal of the District Pound from its present site, S. Capitol and I sts. sw. to the outskirts of the city was made by the Garfield-Douglas Civic Association last night.

The association also asked added police protection for children at the Turner and Garfield Schools; requested several increases in street lighting and sidewalk paving; and asked that a third story be placed on the Turner School, Alabama ave. and Staunton rd. se., in anticipation of increased enrollment.

Hillcrest

James H. Reed, as president, led the slae of officers reelected to the Hillcrest Citizens Association at its season windup in the Washington Heights Baptist Church, 3332 Alabama ave. se., last night.

Eugene A. Ramskill was selected as vice president; Claud E. Cleeton, second vice president; Marshall C. Roberson, treasurer; Mrs. J. T. Mackintosh, jr., secretary; and Mrs. Alfred Myers, financial secretary.

Mount Pleasant

The Mount Pleasant Citizens Association held its "Old Timers'" night at the Mount Pleasant Library, 16th and Lamont sts. nw. last night.

It was the association's final meeting of the season. The entire slate of officers was reelected to take over again in October.

Renamed were: W. Elwood Baker, president; Edward C. Wilcox, vice president; John DeLaMater, secretary; Ronald D. Magee, treasurer; and Dr. M. Virginia O'Neil and Wilcox, Federation delegates.

The group also gave Harry S. Wender a vote of confidence as chairman of the District Recreation Board and opposed operation of District swimming pools under Federal nonsegregation sanctions.

Senate Bill Aims to Keep Mail Service

Three Senators introduced a bill yesterday to direct Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson to restore full mail deliveries and other "essential" postal services.

The bill would cancel Donaldson's April 17 order cutting down postal service. Sponsors of the bill are Senators Olin D. Johnson (D., S. C.) Matthew M. Neely (D. W. Va.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.).

Leahey Says Reduction Is Not Temporary

Sioux City, Iowa, May 8 (AP).—Once-a-day mail service "definitely is not a temporary measure" John Leahey, Washington, D. C., personnel director of the Postoffice Department said here tonight.

Leahey told 120 postmasters, supervisors, postal union officials and postoffice personnel from four States that the order curtailing mail service will go into Nationwide effect by July 1.

He denied the Postoffice Department is to blame for the need for curtailment. He said the department has adopted eight of nine Hoover Commission proposals and "I challenge anyone to find out where the department can save more money in expenditures."

He said a postal rate increase is needed for wiping out the postal deficit. He cited as an example the penny postcard. It takes 2½ cents to process such a card, Leahey said.

By Paul Hume

Margaret Tobias, mezzo-soprano, made her Washington debut last night in Phillips Gallery.

Accompanied by Dorothea Farrow, she ranged, in traditional fashion, through Italian, old English, French German and American songs. It was in the Gypsy songs of Brahms that Miss Tobias suddenly moved from average results into a field where she has few rivals.

Her voice is a rich one, colored more like that of contralto than a soprano. She employed only a modest sample of her range last night, but it was smooth and even throughout.

The qualities that made her Brahms so unusual were her German enunciation, best of the four languages she sang, and her absolute authority of style. In these songs, too, she forsook certain undesirable vocal mannerisms that marred much of her other work.

In French and English, and even in that most open of languages, Italian, Miss Tobias sang with clenched teeth. Such a method prevents the natural richness of tone from escaping, and usually muffles any clarity of text.

Another distressing habit is that of constant movement of the head. Miss Tobias has all the drama and expression inherent in her voice for any interpretation. She need not depend on such externals for effect.

Hers is a rich voice, handsomely used, and capable of rare color and dynamic variety. She must find some early answer to her minor faults in order to pave the way for the career on which she is already traveling.

Combined Chorus, Orchestra

The evening's second concert was a combined chorus and orchestra affair.

It was presented by the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, in the Departmental Auditorium. The Baltimore and Ohio Women's Music Club Chorus sang under the direction of James Dash. And the Department of Agriculture Symphony Orchestra played, directed by Frederick Fall.

It was an interesting exhibition of the way workers in industrial and Government offices make music in their leisure time. As a salute to Music Week, and a facet of music in our Sesquicentennial year, it was appropriate in surroundings and content.

Mrs. Ralph B. Campbell Elected by Orchestra

Mrs. Ralph B. Campbell, of 1914 Ridge rd., S. Arlington, was elected president of the Arlington Civic Symphony Association at the group's annual meeting last night in the Arlington County Court House.

Raymond Reed was named vice president; G. E. Henderson, secretary, and Wilbert G. Fritz, treasurer.

Father Saved After Plunge Into Potomac

A 39-year-old steelworker, who told police his physical and financial condition was "getting worse all the time," plunged 77 feet off Key Bridge yesterday and was rescued uninjured from the Potomac.

He is Thor Edward Olson, Box 12, Glen Echo, Md., father of three children. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital for observation after two fishermen pulled him aboard their motorboat.

His rescuers, who found Olson swimming frantically about 100 feet from the District shore, are William G. Haack, 4831 Western ave. nw., and Murle Tweedie, 5741 Colorado ave. nw.

Air Force Master Sergt. Paul Patterson, 36, of 701 19th st. nw., who was fishing, saw Olson hit the water. He called to Haack and Tweedie, who were closer to Olson.

Olson lost consciousness as he was hauled aboard the craft, Haack said.

Taken to Jack's Boat House, 3500 K st. nw., Olson was given artificial respiration for 15 minutes by Fred Baxter, assistant trainer of the Washington Baseball Club, and brother of Jack Baxter, owner of the boathouse.

The Fire Department rescue squar took Olson to Gallinger.

Olson told police he had been in ill health and unable to work during the winter.

An official at the Rosslyn Steel & Cement Co., 3031 K st. nw., where he worked until April 15, said Olson's wife notified the company he quit because he found another job.

11 Missing On Bay Trip Return Safely

Cambridge, Md., May 8 (AP).—Ten sleepy and hungry amateur sailors came off the 47-foot cabin cruiser Mary Ann safe and sound today after a rough, storm-tossed night on Chesapeake Bay.

An eleventh member of the party, 11-month-old George McComas, jr., fared best of all. He had plenty of food and slept all night.

Harry G. McComas, sr., Cambridge automobile dealer, his three sons, two daughters-in-law, three youngsters from Silver Spring, Md., and Col. Malcolm Morris of the Army, were a little haggard.

They had set out last night about 7:30 from Ferry Point on the Magothy River, just above Annapolis on the western shore of the bay.

The Mary Ann developed water pump trouble out in the bay. McComas and his two older sons tried to make repairs. A high wind developed and the cabin cruiser went aground about 2 a. m. off Bloody Point, midway in the bay between Annapolis and Cambridge.

The Mary Ann stayed there until high water floated her off at 10:30 this morning. McComas brought his pleasure boat into the Cambridge Yacht Club wharf at 3:45 p. m. after a widespread sea and air search had been touched off.

At the wharf to greet the party was the automobile dealer's wife, who had driven back to Cambridge from the Magothy with a 30-month-old grandson.

The family set out yesterday to give the Mary Ann a trial run. She had been berthed on the Magothy when the family lived at Silver Spring. After the boat seemed to run smoothly, the crewmen decided to bring her across the bay last night to her new port.

Along with McComas were his three sons, Harry, jr., George, and Lance. Harry, jr., and George were accompanied by their wives and there was 11-month-old George, jr. Along with 9-year-old Lance were three young buddies from Silver Spring, Otis Hamrick, Bob Wilmat and Joseph Moritz. Colonel Morris, a friend of the family from Tennessee, also went along for the trip.

George, jr., had his milk, but all the others had were two cans of beans.

Mrs. McComas, sr., was waiting at the wharf with a bottle of milk for George, jr., when the Mary Ann pulled in.

Mrs. Harry McComas, jr., brushed past everyone to grasp her young son, who had come home by car with his grandmother.

McComas said the Mary Ann was never in any real danger.

"The only thing we were concerned about was the baby," he declared.

I WAS THERE AND I KNOW!

John Wade, information clerk: "A family man has to hunt the best vacation bargain possible — and I've found it! Florida in summer offers everything the millionaires enjoy in winter — at about one-tenth the price. We took lots of sightseeing tours while we were in Miami, and the youngsters sure got a kick out of seeing The Little White House at Key West."

Phyllis Nelson, Production assistant: "Imagine paying only $2 a day for a room in those swank ocean-front hotels! The beautiful room I had costs plenty in winter, believe me. When you work hard the rest of the year, you really appreciate living in such luxury for two whole weeks—I felt like a queen!

Joan Crosby, account executive: "I was a little doubtful about climate when I chose Florida for last summer's vacation, but now I'm sold! There was a cool ocean breeze day and night, and the temperature average was only 80.6°. Another thing I especially liked was the uncrowded beaches. Plenty of space to stretch out and relax!"

Howard Ahlemeyer, Jr., salesman: "Man, oh man, the wonderful fishing that Florida offers in summer! A whole day with a charter group aboard a deep-sea fishing boat, for only $1.50 —and marlin and sailfish just begging to bite. I got in some good golf and tennis, too— I can hardly wait to get to Florida again this year."

Catherine M. Corrigan, sec'y: "I've traveled before, but I've never enjoyed such wonderful comfort and service as on my National Airlines flight to Florida. Roomy seats, wide windows, and delicious food. What makes it best of all is that comfort and service were combined with National's low summer fares!"

Couple Charged In Delicatessen Gambling Case

Vice Squad detectives yesterday afternoon raided a delicatessen at 718 D st. sw., and arrested the proprietor and his wife for allegedly accepting horse bets and numbers plays from undercover police operatives.

Charged with operating a lottery, setting up a gaming table and possessing numbers slips were Clarence R. Branham, 27, of 809 F st. sw., and his wife, Bernice, 30.

Lieut. Roy Blick said they owned the store. Blick said the operatives had been making plays for three days.

The Branhams were arrested on warrants sworn before United State Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence. Lawrence yesterday continued the couple's arraignment until May 17 and placed them under $1500 bond each.

Police Seek Missing Waldorf Mother of 6

Maryland State police are searching for a 32-year-old Waldorf, Md., mother of six children who disappeared from her home last Wednesday.

The woman, Mrs. Hallie Mae Cobb, was reported missing to State police in Waldorf on Thursday by her husband, Jesse J. Cobb.

Cobb, a butcher in a Southeast Washington market, told police he went home Wednesday night to find his young children crying because, they said, their mother had been taken away in a truck.

Police said he told them the truck may have been a 1950 model black panel.

Mrs. Cobb was described as 5 feet 6 inches tall and 138 pounds. She was wearing a white blouse, black skirt and brown jacket when last seen. She had been employed for a short while at Brinsfield's Pharmacy, North Capitol and Atlantic sts., Washington.

The children are being cared for by neighbors.

Swiss Defense Warning Starts Run on Stores

Lausanne, Switzerland, May 8 (UP).—Swiss housewives, alarmed by an official warning of the possibility of war, rushed to stores today to stock up on food.

They bought large quantities of sugar, flour, chocolate, eggs, fats, oils, rice and coffee.

The run followed a speech yesterday by Defense Minister Dr. Karl Kobelt, interpreted by some as a warning that a world conflict is imminent. In an appeal on May 3, Swiss Economic Minister Rodolphe Rubatel told citizens to put in a stock of food.

150 U.S. Figures Eyed In N. Y. Crime Probe

New York, May 8 (AP).—New York City's investigation of organized crime developed coast-to-coast aspects today as Federal authorities dug into activities of 150 underworld figures.

Gambling operators and alleged racketeers in New York City, Chicago, Los Angeles, New Jersey and Florida have been brought into the sweeping probe.

Already named were New York's Frank Costello; Mickey Cohen, of Los Angeles; Joe Adonis, of New Jersey; Ralph Capone, of the Chicago area; Anthony (Little Augie) Garfano, of New York and Florida, and one-time bootlegger Irving (Waxey Gordon) Wexler.

Federal authorities joined the mushrooming investigation after Manhattan's district attorney raided the plush offices of Nationwide bookie Frank Erickson and seized a truckload of records.

The Federal move was ordered by the Justice Department and included operatives of the FBI, Secret Service, Narcotics Bureau, Alcohol Tax Unit and the staff of two United States attorneys.

They began a wide-scale hunt for information about 150 underworld notables listed on a roster supplied by the Justice Department. The probe will cover every aspect of organized crime, such as bootlegging frauds, income tax evasion, counterfeiting, dope traffic and gambling and possible Nationwide links in the rackets chain.

Manhattan and Brooklyn grand juries continued to hear a parade of witnesses on alleged gambling.

Police Chief's Ousting Called for by Jurors

Miami, Fla., May 8 (AP).—A Dade county grand jury today recommended that Hialeah Police Chief Paul Hannon be removed from office and indicted four "small fry" gambling operators from the Miami suburb.

The names of the four were not disclosed. Informed sources said, however, they were "little fellows" in Dade county's multi-million dollar illgal gambling industry.

Kefauver Expecting To See Crime Dossiers

By the United Press

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), said yesterday Senate crime investigators may get a look at data on big-time gamblers and racketeers which U. S. attorneys across the Nation are collecting for the Justice Department.

Kefauver, who is scheduled to head a $150,000 Senate investigation into interstate crime and its "corrupting" influence on local governments, said the information should be "very valuable."

The Justice Department has ordered district attorneys to prepare full dossiers on about 150 "kingpins of crime" in every part of the country. (This was first revealed on Sunday by The Washington Post).

Kefauver said after a conference with Assistant Attorney General Peyton Ford that he "feels sure" the Senate investigators will get a look at the dossiers.

The actual start of the inquiry awaited the appointment by Vice President Alben W. Barkley of a special committee.

Battered Sesqui

It almost seems as if fate were conspiring to prevent Washington from holding its Freedom Fair in connection with the Sesquicentennial celebration. Delayed in Congress last year and then beset with management difficulties, the Freedom Fair seems to have come to a dead stop because of a ruling by the Attorney General. That ruling, which we may assume Attorney General McGrath issued with some reluctance, says in effect that the establishment of a private nonprofit corporation to lease exhibit space at the East Capitol st. site would be illegal. The construction of exhibit buildings by such a corporation with power to lease them was important because there is not sufficient land at the East Capitol location to induce exhibitors to build their own buildings.

Unless the Sesquicentennial Commission can devise some other means of handling exhibit space, it is faced with these alternatives: It can look for a larger site with more land, or it can appeal to Congress to amend the act providing for Freedom Fair. Suitable sites are extremely scarce. So, despite the difficulty of obtaining congressional action at this late date, that may be the more practicable course. Congress is in a sense to blame for the impasse, because the act establishing the Sesquicentennial Commission contained none of the exemptions from other laws usually found in such legislation.

Whether Congress acts sympathetically may depend in no small degree on the spirit shown by the Sesquicentennial Commission. If Congress is convinced that the Sesqui is a going institution, aside from the exhibit features, it may be more disposed to do something about Freedom Fair. For that reason it is important for the commission not to lose heart. The commission is wise in this connection to stress the 47 special events scheduled by the end of this year. Beyond this, the appeal to Congress can be made on practical grounds. Congress already has voted money for Freedom Fair, and it has a direct interest in enabling the Sesquicentennial Commission to spend that money properly—in short, to put on a celebration worthy of Washington's 150th anniversary as the seat of Congress and the Government.

'Mad, Sweet Heaven . . .'

If you think Washington a pretty dizzy place nowadays (what with the McCarthy business and Mr. Griffith's Senators still up there in the first division) you might take a glance at the news out of Detroit, where the American Psychiatric Association has been holding its annual meet. If only half of what the good doctors have been telling one another about the mental condition of the inhabitants of these United States is correct, Washington may well seem a citadel of serenity, stability and psychological asepsis in an otherwise goofy continent.

Take, for example, the South. In that region, according to Dr. David C. Wilson of Charlottesville, Va., the disorder known as manic-depressive psychosis is especially prevalent—more so, indeed, than anywhere else in the country, and more so in the State of Virginia than in the rest of the erstwhile Confederacy. The principal reason, as we gather from the abstract of Dr. Wilson's manuscript, is the necessity of middle-class Southerners to conform to a rigid family tradition. The strain of living up to their ancestors, and to the noble examples of George Washington and Robert E. Lee is evidently too great for many of them to bear. After a valiant but losing fight against the world of Original Sin, they are obliged to take refuge in alcoholism or madness.

It may, however, be of some comfort to the Southerners to discover that the psychic wear and tear of life in their habitat is not necessarily any more severe than in other parts. In New England, apparently, the big problem is schizophrenia, or dementia praecox; and here, too, we gather, family life is responsible for the dirty work. According to Dr. James Mann of the Briggs Clinic, and Drs. Doris Menzer and Christopher Standish of the Boston State Hospital, schizophrenics are people who haven't had the proper emotional nourishment from their parents. The feeling of being unloved, it is said, leads them into revengeful fantasies, so that the ideas of love and destruction, "of killing and being killed," unfortunately become associated, with lamentable results.

The bad state of psychic health in the United States—where, according to Dr. Robert T. Morse of Washington, about half of all the hospital beds are occupied by mental patients of one category or another—is shown by contrast to the war-ravaged countries abroad. Dr. Lothar B. Kalinowsky of New York, just back from a trip to those parts, found that not only had there been no perceptible increase in the rate of insanity but there had been a downright decrease in the incidence of neurosis. Modern warfare, with its saturation or atomic bombardments and that kind of thing, may be rough on the architecture of a country and disruptive of its social and economic institutions, but apparently it has a rather soothing effect on the nerves and brain. The explanation suggested by Dr. Kalinowsky is that "suffering in a group seems easier to bear than individual suffering." Thus the horrors of war are apparently not much of a factor, in the spread of mental disorders, for according to Dr. Kalinowsky all the foreign psychiatrists are agreed that there is "hardly any limit to man's ability to stand terrifying experiences."

FEPC: Plea For Reason

The one thing certain as the Senate began to debate the fair employment practices bill yesterday was that the country cannot stand a prolonged filibuster. Talkfests in Congress while important legislation awaits action are always damaging to the prestige of representative government at home and of America abroad. This is a tense period in world history. And the spectacle of the Senate talking endlessly to prevent action on a domestic bill could well be the last straw in destroying any hope that the United States can influence events. Not only would it bring Congress into contempt; it would immeasurably injure the cause of representative government throughout the world.

Behind the threat of a filibuster are grave mistakes of judgment. Last year the Republicans of the Senate blundered in preventing the adoption of an effective cloture rule. To be sure, the new rule making it possible to limit debate is an improvement upon the old system of unlimited debate on motions to take up a bill. But it is not an effective safeguard against a minority blockade. The Democratic leadership also made a serious error of judgment in letting the most controversial of the civil rights bills come to a test first. But these errors cannot be remedied at the moment; decisions have to be made in the face of the situation now confronting the Senate.

Four years ago the FEPC bill was taken to the floor of the Senate early in the session and then laid aside after the Southern opposition had filibustered for three weeks and the Senate had voted against cloture. Last year a filibuster prevented the bill from being taken up. This pattern of futility is likely to be repeated unless statesmanship intervenes. With 20 Southerners prepared to talk till the end of time, the bill can be brought to a vote only if 64 votes for cloture can be obtained, and the prospect of getting that much strength for a compulsory FEPC is very slender indeed. Even if some miracle should pull the bill through the Senate, it would probably fail in the House, which last February rejected the idea of a compulsory FEPC and voted 240 to 177 for a voluntary effort to end discrimination in employment. The Senate is thus in danger of humiliating itself and undermining the democratic process and respect for it without any real prospect of achieving the Administration's aim.

In these circumstances it seems to us that the national interest demands a reasonable compromise. Let the opponents of the bill agree immediately to a limitation of debate in return for elimination of all compulsion from the bill. The Southerners' hope of defeating a voluntary FEPC measure is as meager as is the Administration's chance of enacting the more drastic bill. If the issue is the encouragement of fair employment practices by education, conciliation, investigation and publicity, the Senate will almost certainly limit the debate. The chief question seems to be whether this result will come promptly through statesmanlike accommodation or at the end of a desperate struggle that would drag congressional standing in the dust and widen the schism in the Democratic Party.

A voluntary FEPC would not close the issue of using compulsion to end discriminatory employment practices, if that should later prove necessary. It would mean an immediate attack upon prejudices by the means that are currently available—means that would help to promote the unity that is so desperately needed in all free countries today. Of course, it would not satisfy the advocates of a compulsory law, but it would certainly give them more satisfaction than another filibuster ending in a stalemate.

In our opinion, this problem and all others must be faced in the light of the world situation. Men who are enjoying the blessings of freedom should not object to moderating their demands for the sake of conserving our national strength in the present international crisis. Surely it is not too much to ask that in these times reason should prevail in the Senate.

Bargaining In The Dark

The NLRB ruling that an employer must furnish payroll data to a union on a current basis and for the year preceding is, in our opinion, buttressed by sound arguments. The board points out (1) that the going wage rate is a factor that a union has to consider in deciding whether or not to press for wage increases, (2) that current wages are directly related to demands for minimum wage payments, (3) in the absence of pertinent wage data, there is no way of determining the extent to which the minimum wage would affect union employes and, (4) payroll data for the previous year is needed in the present instance to enable the union to find out whether wage inequities exist that should be eliminated. Unless information of this sort is made available to representatives of employes, collective bargaining cannot be carried on intelligently. Hence the board concludes in the case under consideration that the company's refusal to furnish the necessary data was equivalent to a refusal to bargain.

In our opinion, employers who object to divulging facts about wages for purposes of collective bargaining are extremely shortsighted, unless, of course, they indulge in practices that lay them open to charges of unfairness or have been guilty of misrepresentation. For if unions do not have adequate information about wage payments, they are often encouraged to make unreasonable demands that would not be pressed if the facts are known. In other words, employers protect themselves by providing unions with wage data that throw light on the reasonableness of union demands.

Philippine Scandal

The United States has a keen interest in what is happening in the Philippines. While the islands are now an independent republic, their welfare and their defense are closely linked with ours. There has been a good deal of support both within Congress and among the American people for policies of aiding Philippine rehabilitation. But the officials in Manila ought to realize that this sympathy is likely to be dissipated unless they carry out the rigorous house cleaning that the present situation demands.

At present the Buenavista-Tambobong deal smells to high heaven. The Philippine government had an option to purchase the two haciendas for three million pesos. While title to the property was involved in litigation, Minister of Justice Nepomunceno recommended that the government purchase the estates for five million pesos, and President Quirino authorized the deal to go through. The recent senatorial investigation in Manila brought out that 1,500,000 pesos of this sum was paid in checks drawn to Ernest H. Burt, former United States general, who is said to have been formerly connected with the office of the American High Commissioner in Manila. Mr. Burt had only a nebulous claim to the property, having made a down payment of only 10,000 pesos. After the deal had been consummated, the Philippine Supreme Court ruled that he was not a purchaser for value in good faith.

The investigation showed that the checks drawn to Mr. Burt were paid to Jean Arnault, who was or pretended to be Burt's representative. Arnault refused to produce his books for the senatorial committee, and when pressed for details as to what he did with the money he said that he gave a million pesos to a man whose name he did not remember and took no receipt from him. In the public mind this ridiculous explanation is linked with President Quirino's recent statement to the effect that he had authorized the investigation because it "was intended to pass upon the integrity of a member of my cabinet whose appointment is pending confirmation and because a brother of mine is involved." Antonio Quirino, the President's brother in question, denied under oath that he had received anything out of the deal. It is reported, however, that Mr. Burt, who is in this country, wrote a letter to high Philippine officials telling who got the money and that it was not even brought to light in the investigation.

This appalling tale of corruption, added to others similar in nature, is undermining confidence in the Manila regime at home and abroad. The Philippine Senate deserves credit for trying to get to the bottom of it, but to date the outcome is farcical. No amount of whitewash can obliterate the effects of such a scandal. It tends to compromise the standing of the Phillipine republic in the Far East and the cause of democracy everywhere. If Manila expects the continued sympathy and cooperation of the United States, it will certainly have to do a better house-cleaning job than has been done up to now.

No Space For Cars

The long-delayed opening of the Dupont Circle underpass, and the dedication today of the new 14th Street Bridge, should help relieve two of the worst bottlenecks in the flow of cars into downtown Washington. Now that access is made easier for more cars, however, the pertinent question is: Just where are those cars to park?

Mr. Charles M. Upham, director of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, painted a rather dismal picture of the outlook the other day. About 10,000 new off-street parking spaces have been provided in the last four years, but in the same period vehicle registrations in the District have increased by at least five times that figure—and the number of cars in suburban areas has increased proportionately. It is obvious that the efforts to provide new off-street parking facilities downtown, while noteworthy, cannot meet the need.

Most disturbing of all is Mr. Upham's comment that only about a dozen businessmen have evinced any interest in the problem. This is especially strange because the provision of parking space has a vital bearing on the continued prosperity of downtown business houses. These firms, acting collectively through the Board of Trade, are the logical group to take the lead in acquiring low-cost fringe parking lots connected to the downtown district by bus or streetcar. If the business community does not act, then the Commissioners should, and without much more delay. The Commissioners have ample authority to condemn necessary land for municipal parking lots and to lease such lots to private operators. We suggest that the time to do something about parking is before the effects of stagnation reach serious proportions.

Central High Memorial

If Central High School is to die, certainly, that 68-year-old institution should not be allowed to disappear from this community without a trace!

It would seem to me appropriate for the Board of Education, in cooperation with interested citizens, to plan a fitting memorial for Central High School, whose alumni in all parts of the world have reflected with honor its high standards of character.

Belasco Defeat

A recent news story on the theater contretemps in Washington might have read as follows:

"Fifty United States Senators were defeated single handed today by Jess Larsen, head of General Services Administration.

"The Belasco Theater, storm center of three years of work on the part of most of the National Capital's theatergoers, 50 Senators, and the Administration, will continue to be used as a warehouse as a result of Larsen's action.

"A theater organization chartered by the Congress in 1935, The American National Theater and Academy, offered to restore the Belasco without cost to the Government and to pay a yearly rental of approximately $25,000 for the property.

"Fifty Senators signed a letter guaranteeing to introduce and support legislation for reimbursement of this congressionally chartered group for any unamortized portion of its initial restoration investment should the Belasco revert to the Government within a 10-year lease period.

"In the spring of 1949 there were introduced in Congress the Douglas-Baldwin bill and several other similar bills which directed the Public Buildings Administration to lease the Belasco Theater to ANTA for a period of 10 years.

"The Federal Government placed the Belasco property on the market for open bidding and has consistently maintained that it favored use of the property as a theater."

Upshur St. Hospital

According to recent reports Dr. Seckinger has recommended the immediate closing of Upshur Street Hospital in the District. It seems to me that this recommendation overlooks the need for a hospital in the city for the care and rehabilitation of tuberculosis patients.

Tuberculosis is a chronic disease which requires a patient to spend a minimum of one year at either Gallinger or Freedmen's in the District, or at Glenn Dale Sanatorium in Maryland. When the patient gets to a certain point of recovery one of the most important phases of treatment is vocational rehabilitation, and preparation for return to society. The patients now at Upshur Street Hospital work part time, have interviews with prospective employers, make visits to agencies where jobs are available, and, in short, gradually readjust themselves.

Present patients can be discharged from Upshur Street, yes, but what of future patients? After money has been appropriated it will take at least six months to build a 400-bed hospital at Glenn Dale. What are patients to do between now and the time this new hospital is built? Since the hospitals are now filled to capacity, the best thing to do is to keep Upshur Street Hospital open until there is either a tremendous decline in tuberculosis or other facilities become available.

Trailer Hazard

Tractor-trailer traffic has increased to the point where it has become a self-evident traffic problem and hazard. It is not an uncommon sight, especially on the Baltimore boulevard, to witness the weaving and charging tactics of these cumbersome vehicles while they travel at excessive speeds and under adverse traffic and weather conditions.

It does not take a great deal of observation to realize that a large number of tractor-trailers are being operated and driven in a manner far beyond their capacity to be under proper and safe control. When highways are wet and slippery, their jackknife construction makes them a double threat of danger to the average motorist.

The economic advantages of tractor-trailers cannot be denied but the highways should not be used as a substitute for the railroads. State officials should make every effort to supervise and enforce the shipping and traffic laws governing tractor-trailers, and if possible, restrict their travel schedules to those hours when the major highways are devoid of heavy office and holiday traffic.

Strategic Air Power

At the outbreak of World War II many responsible people in and out of Congress stoutly asserted that after all was said and done, it was the cold steel of the infantryman's bayonet that won wars. Top Navy men just as stoutly maintained that the battleship was the ultimate in modern weapons. Today we hear little of "cold steel" and the once mighty battleship is regarded somewhat as a joke.

But we still are told that no war can ever be won by the force of air power alone. We are told that wars can only be won by infantrymen fighting in the mud. People who think that a war with Russia can be won by pitting our ground army against Russia's ground army are not being realistic. Senator Tydings told us a few days ago that Russia has 100 divisions in active service to our eight! That Russia has another 100 divisions in reserve while we have none! It is absurd to suppose that we could ever match Russia's manpower on the battlefield. It is equally fallacious to suppose that in event of war with Russia we can depend upon any appreciable support from European countries.

When we face the facts we will see that what we need to defend our country and our liberty is an equalizer. We need the kind of offensive and defensive military strength that will be equal to the vast manpower that Russia can muster. That strength now lies only in A-bombs, H-bombs, guided missiles, and the means to deliver and to launch them.

"Customs Simplification"

I was interested to read your May 1 editorial, "Customs Simplification." Four days prior to the publication of your editorial, I had introduced a bill in the House dealing with the very same subject.

I agree wholeheartedly with your description of our customs procedures as "antiquated and unnecessarily complicated." You cite interesting examples of confusing and arbitrary classifications, such as carpets with or without fringes, earthenware ash trays etc., which make it difficult to ascertain what tariff rates are applicable.

Permit me to point out another phase of our customs procedure, which is not only complicated but which is injurious to manufacturers and businessmen in this country and harmful to exporters in foreign countries.

I am referring to the practice of our customs officials to impose, retroactively, increased import duties as a result of delayed reclassification of goods, sometimes many months after the American manufacturer imported these goods at prices established on the basis of the duty imposed.

Here is a case which came to my attention recently. A New York firm purchased from a Canadian company certain wooden carrying cases which it uses for its machinery. Before entering into agreement to import these cases, the manufacturer showed them to the appraiser's office at Ogdensburg, N. Y., and furnished all the necessary particulars, including the cost of production. After careful examination, the United States customs officials at Ogdensburg decided that these cases could enter under the customs law at a stipulated import duty. The representative of the New York firm was further advised that if any change was made in the classification of these cases, the firm would be notified within four or five weeks.

Between the months of June and December, 1949, the firm imported approximately 2600 cases from Canada. No notification of a change in classification was received until December, 1949. The American importer was notified of a reclassification and retroactive increase in duty of $1.35 per case was imposed. This increase made importation of this article unprofitable, thus putting an end to all further imports. In addition, the increase was made retroactive on the 2600 cases already imported, all of which was charged to the American importer. None of it could be recouped from the ultimate consumer.

It required a good deal of time and effort to bring this matter to the attention of our customs officials and to convince them of the harmful effect on business in this country such arbitrary decisions have. In this particular intance the reclassfication was nullified, but what about the many instances where no relief was granted?

My bill will stop such practices. It provides that any reclassification of import duties previously determined and approved by our customs authorities shall apply only to future imports and is not to be made retroactive to such goods as have already been imported or are in the process of being imported.

In line with the suggestions, contained in your editorial, for a simplification of our customs operations, I submit that early adoption of my bill and its incorporation into the tariff laws would go far in allaying the fears of many business firms abroad concerning the obstructions in our customs procedure and it would convince them that we are seriously interested in fostering freer trade practices.

Lewis' Power Boosted Again

By Marquis Childs

UMW Welfare Fund

Power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely.—Lord Acton.

A GREAT deal of comment has come out of a brief news story telling how Joe Dickmon, a young coal miner, called John L. Lewis a dictator and was then promptly suspended from the union. Under suspension, he was prevented from working for several months. He apologized, and now presumably he is digging coal again.

This is the logical end of a dictatorial power such as has seldom been seen in this country. It is a phenomenon the rest of organized labor cannot ignore. But the actuality of the control is more remarkable than any symptom, however startling.

Control of the trust fund, based on a levy of 30 cents a ton for each ton of coal mined, gives Lewis a new and even greater power than he had before. Last year, at 20 cents a ton, about 90 million dollars came into the fund as income. This year at 30 cents—the result of Lewis' victory in the coal strike—the income will be over 100 million dollars and perhaps as high as 120 million dollars.

It is difficult to get information out of the United Mine Workers' headquarters here. But so far as I have been able to find out, there are no checks whatsoever on Lewis' use of this fund. A quarterly audit by a certified public accountant is provided, but this presumably covers bookkeeping practices initiated by the trustees who administer the fund.

END

THE CONTRACT between the coal operators and the union provides that the benefit fund is to be administered by three trustees, one the head of the union, the other nominated by the operators and the third a "neutral" trustee. Until April 5, when he resigned, the "neutral" trustee was Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire. Until last September, when the fact was uncovered by a congressional committee, Bridges was paid a salary at the rate of $35,000 a year in this office.

He has been succeeded by Miss Josephine Roche, who was "director" of the fund and now holds that office as well as being "neutral" trustee. Miss Roche has been a friend of Lewis' for many years—ever since she signed a union contract covering the Rocky Mountain Fuel Co., of which she inherited minority control. This was the first union contract signed in the Colorado area.

The trustee representing the coal owners is Charles A. Owen, director of the Pennsylvania Operators Association. But his role would seem to be largely decorative, since he can be outvoted by Lewis and Miss Roche on whatever policies they may decide.

The other day the union put out a so-called press release telling how "officers of the United Mine Workers of America Welfare and Retirement Fund" were meeting with "representatives of United Mine Workers of America." The release said that "administrative procedures have not yet been approved." It also denied that there had been any consideration given to "increasing pension allotments above the previously fixed $100 per month."

END

SO FAR as can be determined, Lewis and Miss Roche will be the judges of how large the pensions are to be. They will also, insofar as can be determined, decide who will and who will not get pensions and benefits. An individual could be excluded if the two trustees did not happen to like the color of his eyes or the color of his politics.

This is a far-reaching and dangerous power. To function with ordinary justice, such a system should be subject to the check of individuals whose only interest is to see that it is fairly administered.

Lewis has in the past dispensed union funds with an absolute authority such as few heads of corporations exercise. A decade ago, he created a wholly owned subsidiary of the UMW known as Lew-Mur-Ken, Inc. Through this subsidiary he made investments in several private coal companies.

One of these was Miss Roche's Rocky Mountain Fuel Co. According to an estimate at the time, more than $500,000 was advanced by the UMW to take up bonds of the company and keep it out of liquidation. The rank and file of the UMW were never given a proper explanation of the transaction. So far as the union was concerned, it could be justified only because it kept union miners at work. Inquiries bring the response that the advances are "being repaid."

Someone has said that if fascism comes to America it will come disguised as super-Americanism. Democracy can be most quickly undermined by those who convert its tenets and its practices to the ways of authoritarianism.

Need For Rent Control

During the past two years, I have traveled far north and south. I found everywhere great need for rent control. This is particularly true of veterans; often these families have no home. They live with parents, relatives and in many cases strangers. The great number of those that are renting could not afford an increase in rent. Certainly this is no time to do away with rent control.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

McCarthy And The Constitution

Lippmann

THE McCARTHY affair has posed the question whether Senators and Representatives are above all the laws which regulate the freedom of speech of other American citizens. The question has been posed before, never however in so extreme a form.

MR. McCARTHY, being a Senator, enjoys the privileges which are described in Article I, Section 6, Clause 1 of the Constitution. During his attendance at a session of the Senate, and while he is going to or returning from the Capitol, he cannot be arrested except for treason, felony, and breach of the peace. Furthermore, as a member of Congress he enjoys the privilege that "for any speech or debate in either House they shall not be questioned in any other place."

I have put the word "other" in italics because it is the key word both to our understanding of this great and historic privilege and to the abuse of that privilege by Senator McCarthy and his senatorial assistants.

THE LANGUAGE of this sentence was at least a hundred years old when the Founding Fathers used it in the American Constitution. It is taken from the English Bill of Rights which was enacted by Parliament after the revolution of 1689. Section 9 of this famous English statute declared that freedom of speech and debate or proceedings in Parliament "ought not to be impeached or questioned in any court o rplace out of Parliament."

Neither the American Constitution of 1789 nor the English Bill of Rights of 1689 says that a legislator shall not be questioned—that is to say held accountable—for what he says in the Congress or in the Parliament. The American document says he cannot be questioned "in any other place" and the English document says he cannot be questioned "out of Parliament."

THE MEANING of these words becomes quite clear when we look into the events which preceded them. During the struggle between the Stuart kings and their Parliaments, the King often attempted to intimidate members of the House of Commons. The great test case came in 1629 when three leaders of the opposition—Sir John Eliot, Denzil Hollis, and Benjamin Valentine—were arrested, brought before the King's Bench, and given severe penalties for their speeches in the House of Commons. For the next 60 years Parliaments fought the precedent established in this case. Nearly 40 years later, in 1667, the House of Commons passed a resolution, and then had a conference with the House of Lords which resulted in reversing formally, on a writ of error, the judgment of 1629. Twenty-two years after this reversal another Parliament in the Bill of Rights reaffirmed the principle of parliamentary immunity from prosecution in the courts or in any other place outside of Parliament.

THE PRINCIPLE of congressional immunity then is not that a Senator may not be "questioned"—that the laws of libel or any other laws, for example, obscenity, do not apply to him. There is not the faintest indication that the English Parliament or the American Founding Fathers ever imagined or intended that legislators should be above and beyond the laws of the land. The great principle is that for what a legislator says or does in the Legislature only the Legislature, not the courts or the executive, may judge him.

The manifest intent of the English Bill of Rights and of the American Constitution was not to make Senator McCarthy immune to the laws of the land. He is subject to all the laws of the land—the traffic laws, the income tax laws, the libel laws, the obscenity laws, and all the rest. He himself has no special privileges whatsoever. The special privilege is in the Senate—to be the only body which can question, judge and punish a Senator for a speech which violates the law.

The Constitution does not suspend any of the laws for the benefit of a Senator. The Constitution says that when the alleged offense is a speech in the Senate, the Senate and not the courts have jurisdiction of the offense.

THE PROOF that the Senate has jurisdiction in regulating the speech of Senators is to be found in the Rules of the Senate. Rule XIX says that "no Senator in debate shall, directly, or indirectly, by any form of words impute to another Senator or to other Senators any conduct or motive unworthy or unbecoming a Senator" and also that "no Senator shall refer offensively to any State of the Union."

It is true that in Rule XIX the Senate has limited the freedom of speech of Senators only to protect Senators—that under the rules as they now stand Senators may say anything they like about anybody on earth except only about another Senator.

BUT IT CANNOT be the claim of the Senate, or the intention of the Senate, to make of Senators a race apart, unbound by the laws of the land, or the rules of justice, or the canons of decency. If that were to become the practice, if McCarthyism were to become recognized as legitimate or even tolerable senatorial behavior, then the great principle of the Constitution would be in jeopardy.

Liberty, having degenerated into license, would again bring forth tyranny, "where blind and naked ignorance delivers brawling judgments unashamed on all things all day long."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Final Turning Point

LONDON.—Very occasionally, there comes a moment in history when nations must either decisively meet, or finally fail to meet, the great challenges confronting them. Such a moment has now come for the United States, with the opening of the conferences of Foreign Ministers in London.

This moment has come because the cohesiveness and strength of the Western partnership against Soviet aggression have been, on balance, deteriorating for many months. So far, the danger is only understood by a small circle of governmental insiders. But this will soon cease to be the case if the conferences here are not successful.

For quite obvious personal and political reasons, the French and other European leaders will begin to warn their peoples of the danger that now exists, inevitably, if unjustly casting much of the blame on the United States. The Western partnership will thus begin to dissolve in a general game of "save yourself and the devil take the hindmost."

To avert this, solid serious agreements must be reached on three basic problems: First, the defense of the West in the face of active Soviet war preparations; second, the preparation of a suitable place for Germany in the Western partnership, and third, the best way to halt the Soviet offensive in Asia.

As it happens, the best way to grasp the urgency of the situation is to examine the problem that in fact has only third priority at London. To put it crudely, the French are now taking almost the same line about their Indo-China that the British took about Greece in 1947. Either the French must be helped in some effective way, or, before very long, they are likely to abandon Indo-China to its fate.

EVER SINCE the end of the war the French in Indo-China have been fighting the powerful guerilla movement of the old Asiatic comintern agent, Ho Chi-minh. At present the Indo-Chinese operations are consuming half of the annual French military budget of approximately $1,400,000,000. Moreover, all the professional army of France, and particularly all the qualified officers and noncommissioned officers, are now busy fighting Ho Chi-minh.

The need to organize a defense of the West is what has abruptly conferred critical importance on this long existing situation. The French military budget cannot be greatly increased without imperiling the remarkable French recovery made possible by the Marshall Plan. And even if he should get the extra money, able War Minister Rene Pleven could not build up the forces for the defense of metropolitan France without trained cadres to serve as a foundation. Suddenly, because of Soviet war preparations, the defense of metropolitan France has come to seem more important than the defeat of Ho Chi-minh.

Politics complicate the situation further. Ho Chi-minh's great asset is not communism, but his position as the exponent of Indo-Chinese nationalism. After appalling delays the French some months ago granted Indo-China qualified independence, setting up the government of the Emperor Bao Dai as the rival of the Ho Chi-minh movement in the nationalism business.

The new Indo-Chinese independence is unfortunately so diluted that French High Commissioner Pignon still occupies the old royal palace at Saigon. American policymakers have always insisted that Bao Dai can never win the masses from Ho Chi-minh unless he is truly sovereign. Americans on the scene have enraged the French by bypassing them in their dealing with Bao Dai. Meanwhile the French insist that their army in Indo-China will only fight for France, and not for Bao Dai.

IN THIS tangled situation, rendered even more sour by French disappointment with the triviality of American aid to date, there is still hope. High Commissioner Pignon has just returned to Paris to advocate much more generous political concessions to the Bao Dai government. First a military victory and then political concessions, is the new watchword. If the French armies receive more equipment, and especially more air power, it is thought possible to give Ho Chi-minh the kind of defeat that greatly affects bandwagon jumpers, who are always crucially important in Asia. But this depends on our action.

Concurrently, the British are deeply engaged in a struggle against Communist guerillas in Malaya, while the feeble Burmese government, with the Chinese Communists on its border, is presiding over a sort of nation-wide riot. If either Burma or Indo-China falls into Communist hands, all the other countries of Southeast Asia will go down like a set of bowling pins in a ten strike. This, in turn, will endanger India, Japan and the Philippines.

In short, a major catastrophe is the quite possible outcome of this problem that has only third priority at London. This does not mean that the problem cannot be solved. If America really helps to build up a solid defense of western Europe, the French can be induced, albeit reluctantly, to carry on in Indo-China. If the Western powers now organize themselves, a joint political and strategic command in Asia can be established. If the United States ceases to dodge its unavoidable responsibilities, such a new Asiatic cold war headquarters can be immensely effective.

But we must face two facts. Catastrophe cannot any longer be avoided by waffling and wabbling and spinning out formulas and appointing committees. And in order to avoid catastrophe, a great mobilization of American resources is going to be necessary. The requirements of this mobilization may be debated by the next Congress. But the Western front against Soviet aggression will shortly begin to collapse, unless President Truman has already authorized Secretary Acheson to tackle cold war problems, here and now, in London, on the practical principle that resources will be employed when, where and as they may be required.

Fire Reported Under Control on Cotton-Laden Ship

New York, May 8 (AP).—An American cargo ship loaded with cotton was afire 330 miles northwest of Bermuda today, but the blaze apparently was under control.

The Coast Guard said a message from the S.S. Joseph Lykes, several hours after her first call for help, reported the fire was "under control for the time being."

The Coast Guard said it was believed there was no immediate danger to the freighter's crew. The 6829-ton vessel had reported she was returning to Hampton Roads, Va.

In Baltimore, maritime sources said the Lykes normally carries a crew of 48 and is captained by F. E. Swint.

"Pay to Hon. A. Johnson or bearer . . ."

In July of 1852, Corcoran & Riggs issued the above draft to their customer ANDREW JOHNSON, Congressman from Tennessee. Thirteen years later that same customer became President of the United States upon the death of Lincoln in 1865.

Like Lincoln, Johnson was a pioneer's son, self-educated, and his "A. Johnson" on the back of the above draft bears a striking similarity to the "A. Lincoln" of his predecessor.

Prices Fixed On New Pepco Bonds, Stocks

By S. Oliver Goodman

A 40-million-dollar financing operation of the Potomac Electric Power Co. last night awaited only clearance by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Final approval was received yesterday afternoon from the Public Utitlities Commission. The SEC is expected to act today or tomorrow.

The financing is divided into bond and stock offerings. Lehman Brothers of New York heads an investment banking group which was the successful bidder yesterday for 30 million dollars in first mortgage bonds, due in 35 years. The winning bid was 100.8025. The group plans to reoffer the bonds to the public at 101.127 to yield 2.70 percent.

$14.50 Price on New Shares

On the negotiated offering of 710,700 shares of additional common stock, a subscription price of $14.50 a share was fixed. Present shareholders will be given transferable warrants entitling them to buy one new share for every five shares held. Holders of record May 9 will receive the "rights" which will expire at 3 p. m. on May 25. Pepco closed yesterday at $15.75 on the Washington Stock Exchange.

Proceeds of the new issues will be used by Pepco as follows: $20,555,000 to redeem first mortgage bonds due in 1966 and which bear 3¼ percent interest; 11 million dollars to pay off bank loans, and the balance to be applied toward the 1950 construction program.

The local underwriting group, which will handle the stock offering, is headed by Dillon, Read & Co. It includes: Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath; Alex. Brown & Sons; Johnston, Lemon & Co.; Folger, Nolan, Inc.; Ferris & Co., Goodwyn & Olds; Robert C. Jones & Co., Mackall & Coe, Robinson & Lukens, and Rohrbaugh & Co.

R. Roy Dunn, vice president and treasurer of Pepco, said yesterday the 710,700 new shares of stock will draw the next quarterly dividend of 22½ cents a share, payable June 30 to stock of record June 6. The preferred dividend of 45 cents a share is payable July 1 to stock of record June 6.

Seven Groups Compete

There was keen bidding on the bond issue with seven groups competing. In addition to the successful bid of 100.8025, these next highest bids were received: First Boston Corp., 100.679; Kidder, Peabody & Co., 100.431, and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., 100.404.

Pepco has estimated its construction needs as follows: for 1950, about 17 million dollars; 1951, about 14.7 million; 1952, about 10.9 million.

Additional new financing will be required next year, according to testimony before the PUC.

Two Flood Crests Menace Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Man., May 8, (AP).—The unruly Red River gnawed at Winnipeg's shaky dikes today and a brewing storm threatened increased danger for this flood-besieged city.

The river's slowly rising muddy torrent had reached a reading of 27 feet, 11 inches at noon—up about four inches since dawn. It was already higher than in any year since 1826.

Troops from as far away as British Columbia were ordered to the flood zone to relieve weary servicemen and civilian workers, exhausted after several days on the slippery, mucky ramparts. Supplies were being rushed from all parts of Canada.

Some 5000 Winnipeg residents and as many in other parts of Manitoba already have been evacuated from their homes.

Authorities fear the worst is yet to come from two flood crests. The first crest is expected in the next few days.

A dozen small towns in the 60-mile stretch from the U. S. border to Winnipeg already are engulfed by flood waters.

No Deaths Disclosed in Quebec Fire

Rimouski, Quebec, May 8 (AP).—An army of relief workers took over today where dead-tired fire fighters left off to bring aid to 2500 made homeless by the worst fire in the history of the region.

The citizens of what is left of this fire-gutted town tried vainly to pick up the charred threads of life among ruins which represented an estimated 20-million-dollar property loss.

Only half of this industrial town of 15,000 on the St. Lawrence River, northeast of Quebec, is left. The rest was consumed by flames, turned into a mammoth blowtorch by 80-mile-an-hour gales which swept through block after block Saturday night and Sunday.

Early unofficial reports were that 10 persons had perished but Army and Red Cross authorities said a checkup disclosed no deaths. Relief officials are double-checking to be sure no one is missing. Many residents fled to nearby towns.

Although exhausted firemen reported the end of the blaze early today, they still stood by in shifts in case it might break out again among the smoldering ruins. Volunteers from a dozen communities had fought steadily for 30 hours to bring the fire under control. A light snow this morning helped them, and today's weather was bright and freezing.

D. C. Real Estate Fee-Fixing Illegal

rather than as individuals), it absolved the National Association of Real Estate Boards and Herbert U. Nelson, its executive vice president.

Douglas' opinion overturned the ruling of District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff last June as far as the Washington board was concerned. It upheld him as to the national organization.

Effect of the ruling is expected to be that the District Court now will approve the injunction asked by the Government forbidding the local board henceforth from setting any fixed fees. Prevailing fees in the District are 5 percent on the first $50,000 involved in a sale or other transaction and 3 percent on all over that amount.

Presumably, from now on each local realtor will have to set his own fee without relation to that of any other. Because the national board was cleared, the court's decision is unlikely to affect fees in other cities. Congress has power, of course, to legislate for the District of Columbia on purely local matters and the antitrust laws cover actions within the District.

Oliver W. Walker, president of the local board, told the Washington Post last night he was "surprised and disappointed" at the decision. He said the board would issue no formal statement until its next meeting in about two weeks.

Walker said he personally felt the decision will have "an unstabilizing influence on the real estate business because we will not be able to set a standard fee which the public accepts."

Justice Jackson's dissent said the majority had failed to "impart any standards" for distinguishing the so-called professions from "other labor that is permitted to organize" collectively. He pointed out that "those rendering many kinds of services" may combine and fix rates of pay, either through unions or not and sometimes through unions that include owners of businesses.

Jackson said: "The brokerage which is swept under the antitrust laws by this decision is perhaps a border-line activity. However, the broker furnishes no goods and performs only personal services.

"Capital assets play no greater part in his service than in that of the lawyer, doctor or office worker. Services of the real estate broker, if not strictly fiduciary, are at least those of a trusted agent and, oftentimes, advisory as to values and procedures.

"I am not persuaded that fixing uniform fees for the broker's labor is more offensive to the antitrust laws than fixing uniform fees for the labor of a lawyer, a doctor, a carpenter or a plumber."

The majority ruling was a victory for the Government after a long fight marked only by court reversals. First the real estate groups were acquitted in a criminal case involving the same charges. Then Judge Holtzoff heard the civil case on the record of the first trial and ruled for the real estate organizations. He took the position that the fee activities did not bring them under the antitrust laws.

Douglas, however, reasoned this way: Price fixing is in itself an unreasonable restraint of trade and in this case "enough has been said to show that . . . an illegal price-fixing scheme has been proved" unless the fixing of real estate commissions does not come under the law.

He discarded arguments that the fees were set up to bring order out of chaos in the local real estate market and that they were not mandatory on the members of the local board.

Said Douglas: "Subtle influences may be just as effective as the threat or use of formal sanctions to hold people in line."

Douglas also ruled out the contention the agents were exempted by the antitrust provision that the labor of a human being is not a commodity in commerce.

The majority referred to the Government's successful antitrust case against the American Medical Association some years ago during which the United States Court of Appeals here held that doctors came within the meaning of the word "trade." Then he said the high court would be acting "in a precedent-breaking manner if we carved out an exemption for real estate brokers."

As to the national association, Douglas said it was not clear whether that group was "laced" into "the conspiracy to fix the commissions in the District of Columbia." He noted that the national rules may be advisory only on the local board and that the evidence was not sufficient to overturn the lower court on this point.

this authority in several recent cases.

In all other cases, it is up to the employing agencies to deal with their delinquent employes — the usual process is to ask them for their resignations or face charges. In most cases, it's reported, the resignations are submitted without much of an argument. However, in at least two cases the accused said they had reformed. The opinion of doctors is being sought on them.

Sex perverts are regarded as bad security risks and untrustworthy by the Government, since they might be persuaded to tell official secrets on a threat of being exposed.

Cows Being Tested in Heated Chambers for Deep-South Type

secticides called "Systemic Insecticides." These promise completely to alter the methods of killing insects, and ultimately to do away with the wartime mosquito-killing wonder DDT and other dusts and sprays.

The leading type is called octomethyl pyrophosphorous. It is spread through the plants. Instead of being dusted or sprayed as with DDT the plant seeds are treated, or it is put on the roots or leaves.

When spread on one leaf, for instance, or put in the seed or in the soil near the roots, the toxin spreads to the entire plant. The treated plant kills aphids, plant lice and many other insects that come into contact with it.

The experimenters are going slow with the new bug-killers. They admit there is more that they don't know about them than what they do. The types already developed are effective with some insects and not with others. Experimenters hope they will ultimately be usable for corn borers that cut down last year's crop by millions of bushels.

According to S. A. Hall, department chemist, first use of the new insecticides may be on cotton. It is effective on most serious cotton-damaging insects except the boll weevil.

The new series were part of the war reparations. Hall was one of a group of Americans who went to Germany in 1945 and took over the reports of experiments conducted for the German chemical firm, I. G. Farben. The insecticide was developed by a German chemist, Gerhard Schrader.

Beltsville authorities admitted that the continued use of insecticides such as DDT are creating unexpected problems. DDT doesn't disintegrate in the soil. In fields where it has been used for years the accumulation is posing a serious problem. Other insecticides present other dangers equally serious.

In the cattle experiments an effort is being made to find out for sure if cattle sweat. Portions of various cows are being shaved, and the skin tested for moisture after being subjected to heat. Both hide and hair are being tested for their insulation qualities—whether they keep the heat out. The difference of the animal's color also is a question. Some experimenters believe the large areas of black on the Holstein make it more susceptible to heat rays.

The test chambers are maintained at a steady degree of humidity. They are closed, so that the cooling benefits of any breeze are not available. Cattle are believed to use the slightest air turbulence for their cooling mechanism.

Several State experimental stations and Johns Hopkins University are joining in the work.

Another research project that attracted the visitors was by the Fiber Testing Laboratory. Mrs. Bess Morrison reported that men like soft sheets made of rayon. Women want the harder, rougher cotton sheets.

These experiments were conducted by several colleges. Authorities had trouble keeping boys in dormitories from taking rayon sheets home. The girls refused to use them.

"We think it reflects the training the girls get in home economics," Mrs. Morrison said, explaining that the cotton sheets are better.

Woman Cancer Sufferer Ends Life With Shot

A 74-year-old cancer sufferer ended her life with a revolver bullet yesterday at her home near Colesville, Md., police reported.

Police said Mrs. Minnie Holland of Notley rd., Paint Brush Farms, was found by her husband, Stanley F. Holland, on the floor of their upsetairs bedroom with a bullet through her head, and a revolver in her hand.

Holland found the house locked when he returned from the garden, and broke down the door with the help of neighbors. Mrs. Holland had undergone an operation recently, police said. Montgomery County Medical Examiner F. J. Broschart issued a certificate of suicide.

Why just listen to reasons ?
COME SEE FOR YOURSELF !

THIS TIME we'd like to tell you about something that you cannot see in this picture—something, in fact, you cannot know about from looking at someone else in a passing Buick—or from viewing a Buick on our showroom floor.

It's the feel you get from a Buick in motion.

You are going to find out that it is something like traveling on your own private, jet-propelled cloud—only firmer.

Maybe you know a stretch of washboard road, where you have to slow down, or bounce and jitter.

Try that in a Buick and see how you keep a level, comfortable boulevard smoothness.

Maybe you're always on edge to dodge dips and chuckholes. Those also lose most of their jolt when you're at the wheel of a Buick—or in the rear seat.

In a few simple words—the ride of any Buick—SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER—is out of this world.

We could give you a lot of reasons. Soft coil springs on all four wheels, for example—the firm linkage of the torque-tube drive—the distribution of weight—big soft tires on wide rims—the way Buick engines are mounted.

Even Dynaflow Drive*—always silk-smooth and free of geared-drive harshness—plays its part in the marvelous Buick ride.

But why simply listen to reasons? Experience is still the best teacher.

Come see for yourself why the Buick ride is called "matchless"—and how little it costs to replace a jitterbuggy with one of these level-striding honeys.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

ONLY BUICK HAS Dynaflow AND WITH IT GOES: HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD forefront, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube • WIDE ARRAY OF MODELS with Body by Fisher.

One on the Aisle—

Tallu: New Speaker For an Old House

By Richard L. Coe

SHOULD ANYONE have been wondering why it is Tallulah, the thespian Bankhead, keeps doggedly playing "Private Lives" across the land for three seasons, the Gayety has the very simple answer: a good show.

The lady's rambunctious playing and Donald Cook's socko assist make Noel Coward's 20-year-old hit the merriest laugh-getter the Gayety has offered.

The faithful theatergoer, not to say the conscientious reviewer, may feel all too familiar with the plot about the two newly-weds who discover they've married the wrong, if new, faces. I've seen it done by the original stars, Coward and Miss G. Lawrence; I've seen it done at Olney, Cross Roads and the extinct Washington Civic Theater, not to mention performances in Arabic, French and Italian.

The fact remains, albeit, that listening to Tallulah snarl and purr, rant and look blank, is about as rare a treat as theatrical comedy today presents. What if she does yuck up every situation and what if it is an old horse chestnut she's offering the customers? Listening to the Gayety chortle last night and looking back over the 120 weeks she's had the play trucking the land, it's simple to see why "Private Lives" could easily become to Tallulah what "Rip Van Winkle" was to Joe Jefferson or "Becky Sharp" was to Minnie Maddern Fiske. Tallulah may well have just begun her trouping in this one.

Nor should one omit the dogged and sauve playing she gets from Leading Man Donald Cook. Obvious it may be, but the man's inflections, timing and mugging make for honest lowbrow laughter.

One can have, even in so large a country, with such vast audience, slight regrets that "Private Lives" can keep an able actress so busy for so long. It would be nice to think that there is some manuscript kicking around ready for the star, but if there is, it hasn't been found.

But this politically wise, baseball-loving actress, who behaves in the public eye with the unabashed exuberance the rest of us enjoy only in the privacy of our baths or daydreams has, in Amanda Prynne, a part that fits the Tallulah the public reads and hears about. Small wonder the public enjoys her exhibition and that the touring she outlined in Sunday's theater pages has been so sensationally remunerative.

It's easy to forget, watching Tallulah's Amanda, that she does have a dramatic force and technical skill beyond the reach of most of our actresses. Her Regina in "The Little Foxes," and her initial success in London—("They Knew What They Wanted" and "The Lady of the Camillias")— attest that prowess. While her celebrated Cleopatra was a flop, she does seem to me to have an interesting potential for Lady Macbeth.

But the question of finding suitable parts for expensive stars is overwhelming in our expensive theater. Yet, how else is an actress to act, to grow as an artist? So it is one becomes anxious about the future of a lady whom it is so easy and so remunerative to treat as a fabulous freak.

"PRIVATE LIVES." John C. Wilson presents the comedy in three acts by Noel Coward. Gowns by Mainbocher. Staged by Martin Manulis. Settings by Charles Elson. At the Gayety Theater.

THE CAST

Sibyl Chase	Shirley Standlee
Elyot Chase	William Langford
Victor Prynne	Donald Cook
Amanda Prynne	Tallulah Bankhead
Louise	Claudine Leduc

William Langford is once more the scorned second husband, as he was last summer at Olney. Shirley Standlee is now Cook's hapless helpmeet and Claudine Leduc has replaced Therese Quadri as the Parisian maid. It's no slur on Miss Leduc to remark one rather misses Miss Quadri, who was out at Olney. She had the same part when Coward and G. Lawrence opened back in 1931.

And so these two weeks the Gayety echoes to the most vibrant, easily imitated voice of our day. It may be 20 years since Coward dreamed of Gertie Lawrence in Tokyo's Hotel Imperial and so dreamed up his comedy, but the Tallulah tingle keeps it alive.

It's fine, then, to welcome back this daughter of the late Speaker of the House. At the reformed Gayety, Tallulah is a grand new speaker for an old house.

GLORIA SWANSON will be in town Wednesday night for several dates . . . She'll look in on the Home Show and she'll host the exhibitors at a screening of her new picture, "Sunset Boulevard," Thursday afternoon . . . Friday the scribes of the high school press will pay her a call . . . Which means Gloria will be making more friends than ever . . . She's starting a tour that will take her to the Coast by August.

"THE TITAN" is in its last day at the Dupont. . . . Better catch that one while you can. . . . "A Canterbury Tale" arrives Wednesday.

Child Adoption Is Described At Meeting

A public meeting at which five speakers described the process of child adoption drew some 350 persons last night at the General Services Building auditorium, 19th and F sts. nw.

Miss Genevieve Gabower, executive secretary of the Children's Protective Association, a Community Chest agency, said the meeting was "a trial balloon" and "the first of its kind ever held."

Speakers included Dr. Preston A. McLendon, pediatrician and member of the association's board of directors; Dr. Mabel Cohen, psychiatrist and editor of the quarterly professional journal, "Psychiatry"; Mrs. Kenneth Breeze, psychologist, who has recently taken over the testing of infants, prior to adoption, for the association; B. Woodruff Weaver, attorney and legal adviser to the agency, and Miss Gabower, who spoke in her capacity of social worker.

The speakers were introduced by Arthur Kruse, executive director of the United Community Services. After their addresses, they answered questions from the floor.

Because of the public interest, Miss Gabower said the addresses will be printed in leaflet form.

Arlingtonian Sees Menace In Hatch Act Proposals

An Arlington Better Government League spokesman yesterday charged Federal workers would be deprived of participation in local politics because of what he described as an apparent "deal" between the Civil Service Commission and the "Byrd machine."

The BGL spokesman, Harley M. Williams, said that under terms of amendments to the Hatch Act now pending in the Senate the CSC would get discretionary powers over Federal employes in their participation in local campaigns, and the authority to deny to these workers the right to take part in any political activities.

"Even if the commission should decide to allow Federal employes to be active on the local level, the Virginia party plan would effectively prevent them from working within the dominant Democratic party," Williams said.

Wayward Bus Found in Virginia

A 37-passenger sightseeing bus was among the missing for nearly eight hours yesterday in a mystery police still haven't plumbed.

Painted white and blue and owned by the Atwood Bus Co., it was stolen from New Jersey ave. and D st. nw. at about 1:45 a. m. It was found by police about 9:30 a. m. near the Navy Annex on Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington.

About the only plausible explanation was that Navy or Marine personnel needed the bus for some early morning back-to-the-base transportation.

Maryland U. to Bar Students Who Took Part in N. Y. Riots

The University of Maryland will bar from admission any New York student who participated in the recent student riots in New York City, President H. C. Byrd announced yesterday.

Investigation of prospective students will be intensified, said Dr. Byrd, not necessarily to probe subversive background "but to determine whether they lived decently with other students around them."

The president said "Maryland is not going to take any students known to have participated in the recent disturbances there."

Byrd's statement was supplemented by George W. Fogg, university's director of personnel, who said: "The riot was not instigated by the students themselves. But we do not want people who can be led around that way."

The New York disorders were in support of teachers' demands for higher pay.

Maryland University has no set policy regarding admittance of Communists or Communist sympathizers, Byrd stressed. "I don't know of any case where such a situation has arisen," he said.

3d Execution Stay Is Granted Holober

Richmond, Va., May 8 (AP)—A third stay of execution has been granted Charles Francis Holober, 41-year-old former Washington cab driver, who admitted slaying his wife and baby daughter and burying their bodies at an abandoned nudist camp.

Governor Battle's office was notified today that Fairfax County Circuit Judge Paul E. Brown had set the new execution date on June 15 to allow time to complete filing of a petition for appeal with the Virginia Supreme Court.

Tigers Cuff Yanks, 7-1; Houtteman Wins Fourth

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

TED WILLIAMS, the Boston newspaperman who also plays left field for the Red Sox, reports in his thrice-weekly articles for the press that his team is pennant-minded. He has the advantage, you know, over the sedentary baseball writers who must make their predictions and then and leave them lie for six months.

Williams can make his pennant selections and then do something about 'em, like hitting seven home runs in the first 20 games and average better than one run per game driven in. You'll notice by the league standings that he's helped boost the Red Sox into a virtual tie with the Tigers for the lead.

POVICH

Getting off fast is a comparatively new experience for the Red Sox who for three years have been blowing pennants by being so sluggish (un-pun) at the start. They've won 10 of their last 11 games, and the clubs visiting Boston's Fenway Park have found it to be an abattoir where the Red Sox are practically unbeatable.

But it's when they take their show on the road that the Red Sox always beg for disaster. Last season they won 61 games, lost only 16 in Fenway Park. But they couldn't break even out of town. And of the seven games they've blown this year, four were on the road.

THEY WERE LABORING with a 4-6 record late last month when Williams returned to the lineup after a siege of flu, and it's significant that they won 10 of their next 11 games. You'd have to call big Ted one of the most potent baseball writers in the business.

It was the weakness on the Boston bench that cost 'em the pennant in the final weeks last season, and Joe McCarthy is still moaning about that. He came up to the crucial series with the Yankees in such foul shape for reserves that when he required a couple of pinch-hitters he could summon merely the likes of Billy Hitchcock and Matt Batts, two renowned nonhitters.

McCarthy is taking one step toward fortifying his bench, with the two-for-one deal he made with the Nats the other day. It brought him Clyde Vollmer for pinch-hitting duties. Vollmer isn't the dream hitter, but with that inviting left field fence in Boston to shoot at, he could do very well for the Red Sox.

AT LEAST McCARTHY esteemed Vollmer enough to give the Nats one of his surplus infielders, Merrill Combs, and Outfielder Tom O'Brien. Combs couldn't dislodge the hefty-socking Vern Stephens from the shortstop job, but he has been a highly-prized rookie for a couple of years now and the kind which all clubs are reluctant to give up on.

Combs, at best, is not supposed to hit much, but he was somewhat amazing in the Red Sox camp at Sarasota this spring where his .330 average was the best batting figure of any infielder on the Boston club. Long before that, his fielding skill at shortstop was established.

The Sarasota natives and tourists, too, used to bring their lunches to the Red Sox park for the pleasure of watching Combs work with the second-string infield after the regulars were dismissed. There was always the suspicion that some day the shortstop job with the Red Sox would open up for Combs.

In fact, General Manager Joe Cronin refused a half dozen offers for the fellow from other major league clubs. He may have handed over to the Nats a real good ball player.

THERE WAS a four-year hiatus in Combs' baseball career on account of the war. Originally, he came up through the Red Sox farm team at Rocky Mount, N. C., where Manager Heinie Manush was amazed at the succession of good shortstops the parent club sent him.

Down to Rocky Mount they first sent Johnny Pesky, then Combs, then Sam Dente. Manush catalogued them recently. He said Dente had the best arm of the three, Pesky could get on base the most often, and Combs was the best shortstop. Casey Stengel had Combs at Oakland in 1948, called him the best shortstop in the Coast League.

Just to learn whether Stengel meant it, Cronin last spring put Combs on the waiver list after Stengel was named manager of the Yankees. The Yankees put in the first claim for him, and Cronin was satisfied on that point. He pulled Combs off the list.

Right now, the Nats are looking somewhat like the Red Sox's junior varsity. Shunted to Washington in the last couple of years by Cronin are no fewer than six former Red Sox—Dente, Combs, O'Brien, Al Kozar, Sam Mele and Mickey Harris. And you can count Manager Bucky Harris as a Red Sox discard, too. None of which is necessarily disagreeable to Washington fans.

Panella Pitches

Maryland Beats Virginia, 7-2, Snaps 8-Game Win Streak

Charlottesville, Va., May 8 (Spl.).—Maryland's Terps snapped Virginia's eight-game winning streak here today with a 7-to-2 victory.

Three runs that scored in the seventh inning after Ed Crescenze fanned for the would-be third out clinched the Terps' fourteenth winning effort against five losses. Cavalier Catcher Bill Berner dropped the ball and Sam Patton couldn't cover first base in time to retire Crescenze, who ran it out.

Maryland Pitcher Nick Panella allowed five hits and retired a string of 16 batters until he weakened in the ninth inning.

Nats Make It 2 in Row, 4-2, Over Tribe; Beat Feller

Mitchell kept the faint Cleveland hope alive by lashing out another hit with two away.

Manager Bucky Harris was almost prompted to replace Hudson, but decided to let Sid have a fling at Vernno. And it was on Sid's first offering to his former teammate that the play of the night happened, and the Indians' goose was cooked.

Feller, bidding for his third victory, sustained his second defeat instead. He worked six innings and gave up all four Washington runs on seven hits.

Dente Whacks Triple

Infield hits by Eddie Yost and Irv Noren, sandwiched between Gil Coan's sacrifice bunt, set up a run off Feller in the third inning and Eddie Robinson got it home, long fly to left to score Yost.

Sherry Robertson, who cracked Feller's deliveries for a double and a single, launched the Nats on a two-run expedition in the fourth by singling to center. Sam Dente teed off on Feller's second offering for a line drive to right field which ricocheted off the wall and bounced away from Luke Easter for a triple to score Robertson. Hudson came through with a fly to left to bring Dente in.

The Nats made it 4-0 with their final run in the eighth, and it was Hudson who again stroked it in. A walk to Robertson and Dente's acrifice moved Robertson to second from where he scored as Hudson slammed a single to left.

Hegan, Easter Reach Third

Until the ninth, only three Indians had gotten to third base. Jim Hegan reached there twice, once on a triple with two away, and Luke Easter got that far under similar circumstances in the eighth.

The Indians threatened to unseat Hudson in the sixth when he walked Mitchell and pitched a single to Vernon to put Indians on first and second with none out.

In this spot, Hudson made Easter pop up, got Larry Doby on a harmless fly to center and struck out the dangerous Joe Gordon. The Indians remained calm until the ninth when Hudson stilled 'em for the final time.

IN SHORT . . . Merrill Combs and Tom O'Brien, obtained by the Nats from the Red Sox Sunday, failed to arrive last night and Manager Bucky Harris had to forego his plan of switching Sam Dente to second and inserting Combs at short . . . both newcomers wired they'd be in this morning . . . removal of the unused bullpen in left-center yesterday saved the Nats a run last night as Noren raced far back into the spot where the pen had been located to haul in Doby's high fly in the fourth . . . Manager Lou Boudreau, nursing an injured shoulder and a fractured batting average, had the Indians out at 3:30 yesterday for a two-hour batting practice. . .

They Hit Short Homers

Griff Removes New tSands—Visitors Had Too Much Fun

Because the opposition was taking more advantage of the shortened home runs areas than the Nats, the new left field stands at Griffith Stadium will be torn down this morning.

So ordered President Clark Griffith yesterday.

The temporary stands were constructed last winter and shortened the home run distances by about 19 feet in each direction.

Of the nine, those off the bats of Joe DiMaggio, Peter Suder, and Eddie Joost cleared the temporary structure and landed in the permanent bleachers. Of the other six, only one was hit by a Nat—Gil Coan, a left-handed batter at that.

The temporary stands seated 854 customers, but not a seat had been occupied since opening day.

Bogley-Nesline Win Pro-Am Golf With 143

Until yesterday Joe Nesline of Prince Georges was an unknown golfer who, it was said, never broke 95 in his life. No more.

Joe came up with an 84 in yesterday's PGA Pro-Am at Prince Georges. This combined with his 16 handicap enabled him and his partner, Walter Bogley, assistant pro at the host club, to win the Pro-Am with 143 and also give Nesline the Amateur Sweepstakes with a net 68.

Andy Gibson of Country Club of Maryland and Charlie Bassler of Rolling Road continued to monopolize the spotlight in the Pro Sweepstakes, tying with three below par 69's.

Bassler came up with the day's outstanding shot, an eagle on the 485-yard, par five, fourth hole. He chipped his third shot in from 40 yards.

Mary Faulk Shoots 69 in Virginia Golf

Virginia Beach, Va., May 8 (AP). Miss Mary Lena Faulk, a slender brunette from Thomasville, Ga., shattered a couple of records and won medalist honors with a three-under-par 69 here today in the thirty-fifth amateur championship tournament of the Women's Southern Golf Association.

The 24-year-old star's performance not only established a new mark for the 6,065-yard Cavalier Yacht and Country Club layout, but broke the old Southern women's record of 70 set by Louise Suggs of Atlanta in 1947.

Miss Faulk played the front nine in even par 36 and came breezing back to the clubhouse in three under 33. She poked in an eagle and three birdies and was over par only twice.

Behind the three-time winner of the Georgia State women's title was Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Tex., who trailed Miss Faulk by four strokes with a 73.

Scoring 74s were Dorothy Kirby, the veteran of many years of golf from Atlanta, and Bee McWane, State champion of Alabama from Birmingham.

Miss Mary Ann Downey, Maryland champion from Baltimore, carded a 76.

Red Sox Sell Dorish to Browns

Boston, May 8 (AP).—Harry Dorish, Boston Red Sox relief pitcher, was sold today to the St. Louis Browns for an undisclosed amount of cash, the Red Sox management announced.

The sale cuts the Sox squad to 27, 2 above the maximum allowed after May 17.

Bums Hold Off Pirates in 9th For 7-5 Victory

Pittsburgh, May 8 (AP).—Brooklyn barely survived another ninth inning rally today, staving off Pittsburgh, 7-5, on Jim Russell's two-run homer.

Clarence Podbielan, rookie right-hander, held a 7-3 lead going into the ninth, but faltered after Ralph Kiner blasted his fifth homer. The Brooks finally had to call in Jack Banta to get the side out. It was Kiner's first hit off Dodger pitching in 35 times at bat, dating back to last season.

New York, May 8 (AP).—The National Boxing Association will be asked to recognize the winner of the Ray Robinson-Robert Villemain fight in Philadelphia June 15 as the middleweight champion of the world, it was learned tonight.

The Pennsylvania athletic commission will make the request at formal signing ceremonies in Philadelphia tomorrow. Both Robinson, who holds the world welterweight crown, and Villemain, slugging Frenchman, are recognized by the NBA as leading contenders for Jake Lamotta's 160-pound title.

League Prexy Gets Tough

This International Stalling Fails

New York, May 8 (AP).—President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League today ordered a replay of the second game of yesterday's Jersey City-Toronto doubleheader because of stalling tactics. Fines totaling $150 also were assessed.

The action by the league president removed a Jersey City win and a Toronto loss from the records. Jersey City led 4-1 when the game was called by the Toronto 6 p.m. curfew.

With Jersey City leading, 4-1, about 40 minutes to play, Shaughnessy said, the Jersey iCty club deliberately tried to get out so that the fifth inning would be played. Toronto in turn stalled.

"The 4arge crowd was disgusted by this farcial play," Shaughnessy wrote.

"This office will not tolerate such tactics," he continued, "and the win by Jersey City and loss by Toronto is removed from the records. The game will be rt-played on June 26 starting with the first half of the fourth inning. Jersey City still leading and it will be a seven-inning game (customary in the second games of International League doubleheaders). It will start one hour before the regular starting time."

Shaughnessy fined Manager Joe eBcker of Jersey City and Shortstop Ralph La Pointe of Toronto, $50 each, and Jersey City layers Joe Bracchitta and Gail Henley $25 each for "farcial tactics."

Pirates Send Fitzgerald Down

Pittsburgs, May 8 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates today optioned Catcher Eddie Fitz Gerald to Indianapolis on a 24-hour recall basis.

Fitz Gerald, a 25-year-old 6-footer, joined the Bucs in 1948. In the six games in which he appeared this year the Californian batted a meager .067.

Kell, Wertz Lead Way as Detroit Keeps League Lead

New York, May 8 (AP).—Art Houtteman, 22-year-old Tiger pitching ace, weathered a ninth-inning uprising today, enabling Detroit to defeat the New York Yankees, 7-1, and stay on top in the American League.

The victory was Houtteman's fourth of the season against a single loss. Hoot Evers led the attack on loser Vic Raschi with a two-run homer in the ninth, and a single in the fourth that scored George Kell.

With one out in the ninth, Gene Woodling singled, and then two Yankee pinch-hitters came through with one-base hits—Johnny Mize and Jimmy Delsing. But Evers then made a diving catch of Phil Rizzuto's liner to left, and Cliff Mapes tapped weakly to Houtteman.

Raschi went all the way for the Yankees and still had trouble with the new balk regulation. Last time he pitched, four were called on him. This time he was penalized once.

Raschi's balk advanced Vic Wertz to third in the ninth inning. Oddly enough, the pitch hit Evers hard on the shoulder, but he was not sent to first because of the balk. Evers then lashed his homer to left field.

Kell and Wertz also did heavy hitting for the Tigers. Kell, last year's American League batting champion, had a triple, double and single in five times at bat, scoring three times, and Wertz made a double and triple.

The University of Maryland Frosh weathered a four-run ninth inning by the George Washington Frosh to whip the Colonials, 12-10, yesterday at College Park, for the Terp yearlings' seventh straight success.

Third Baseman Vic Jungk got six hits in six times up for Maryland—a home run, two doubles, and three singles. GW has a 5 and 2 record, both losses coming at the hands of the Maryland Frosh. The other game was a slugfest, too. The Terps won that one 14-13.

King Chatter Survives Foul Claim to Win at Pimlico

Bill Bennings . . .

Dear Folks: At Pimlico

Local officials believe the Derby result makes the Preakness even more interesting than usual. Five of the first six horses to finish—Middleground, Hill Prince, Mr. Trouble, Sunglow, and Oil Capitol—are eligible for the Maryland test. With Ferd and Kinsman to be thrown into the test there should be a lot of smoke and plenty of fire. Bill Boniface, Baltimore Sun scribe, planed up from Louisville with Jockey Eddie Arcaro who gave him a long explanation as to how he didn't have any trouble in the Derby. It is true that Arcaro didn't get hurt. But I'd hate to be as tight as the quarters he got into, according to all reports. There is no truth to a rumor that Sammy Palumbo will ride Hill Prince in the Preakness. See you on the rail—BILL.

Rough Ride In Stretch Mars Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., May 8.—Joseph Culmone, hard riding apprentice jockey, used up 1.44 4/5 seconds in sending Watson Elliott's King Chatter a mile and a sixteenth here this afternoon. However, the time, as far as his backers were concerned, could read 11.44 4/5 because it required the young Italian-American at least 10 minutes to talk the stewards out of disqualifying his mount.

The confusion marked the finish of the Star Porter, a glorified claiming event disguised as the feature race.

Culmone, aboard King Chatter, had a good lead with some 50 yards to go. Then J. T. Gibson's Service Pilot charged up on the outside. The two horses bumped and Culmone appeared to toss his whip in a dozen directions as the thoroughbreds went into the line as a team.

Passmore Claims Foul

Jockey William Passmore, Service Pilot's rider, waited around the scales until King Chatter was flashed as the winner and promptly claimed a foul.

Opinion in the press box was divided as to whether King Chatter had come out on Service Pilot or vice versa.

The stewards called in their various observers and the two jockeys and viewed the movies, while "live" titcketholders in a crowd of 10,162 stood on first one foot and then on the other.

Finally the "official" was lighted and King Chatter backers hustled to the pay-off windows to partake of a $9.20 mutuel.

The second race brought a nasty looking spill but both horses and riders escaped injury. Little Fang and Mail Coach went down together while in close quarters turning into the stretch. Horses and jockeys were in a scramble but both John Dickey and James Del Vecchio bounded to their feet. Outriders captured the horses.

Unhampered by the spill, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Phoney proved the winner in a photo finish with W. T. Leatherbury's Grab Bag. The winner, despite the name, was a $4.60 favorite and put the finishing touches on a $135.80 daily double begun when Peasy, owned by Louis Hurwitz of Washington, took the first race as a $39.40 shot.

Heurich Wins Sandlot Opener, 8-6

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

HEURICH FOR HARRY—On the sandlots, the Harry Truman of opening day making the inaugural pitch is Chris Heurich, whose Brewers defeated Cameo, 8-6, on the Ellipse yesterday in a Post Industrial League game. Left is Bill Flester, league president, and, right, Dick Tennyson, local commissioner of the All-American Baseball Association, whose annual tournament will be held next fall

Darkness Halts Game in 9th Inning

Heurich Brewers successfully opened defense of its Post Industrial League crown yesterday with an 8-6 victory over Cameo Furniture.

The game, played on the West Ellipse, was called in the ninth inning because of darkness after Cameo had tied it up, 8-8. Since Heurich had not batted in the inning, the final score reverted to the end of the eighth.

Four Alarm in 8th Gives Firemen Victory

A four-run alarm in the eighth inning doused the Naval Gun Factory yesterday as the D.C. Fire Department won its East Recreation League game, 10-7, at East Ellipse.

CEIC nipped Phillipine Club, 6-4, in a league game which was called after seven innings due to darkness.

Official Denies Telling Police Slain Boy Was Dangerous

An Industrial Home School counselor yesterday denied he had told Maryland county police a boy fugitive from the school was "dangerous." The boy was fatally shot on Friday by police after the counselor had called for help to apprehend him.

The slain fugitive, George William Mooney, jr., 14, of 20 14th st. ne., was shot while fleeing four policemen, two from Prince Georges and two from Anne Arundel County, who had pursued him across the Patuxent River, the county line.

One of the policemen, Pvt. William Walters, 30, of Anne Arundel County, has been charged with manslaughter and is free on $1000 bond pending a preliminary hearing June 2.

Lawrence Prentiss, counselor at the Industrial Home School, who had found the fugitive in Wayson's Corner, Md., and called for police help when the boy fled, denied yesterday that he told police anything about the boy being dangerous or desperate.

Police Chief Ralph W. Brown of Prince Georges County, to whom Prentiss phoned for help on Friday, declared during the investigation that Prentiss had told him the boy was "dangerous" and trouble could be expected if he was not picked up.

The District Board of Public Welfare yesterday released a detailed statement by Prentiss of his part in the case. It states that Prentiss told Major Brown the boy should be picked up because he might get into further difficulty, as he had been sleeping in cars and had no money.

Tyler to Face Inquest Today In Slayings

William Andrew Tyler, jr., confessed slayer of two Lansburgh department store watchmen, will face a coroner's inquest at 11:30 a. m. today.

The tall, 18-year-old youth yesterday was visited by one of the two attorneys retained by the family to defend him.

The lawyer, Maurice R. Weeks, said he did not have time in his interview to get Tyler's "complete" story. Weeks will be joined at the inquest—and presumably at the trial—by an associate, Attorney James L. Leak.

Detectives yesterday said they planned to quiz Tyler, as part of their investigation "routine" about two other District murders in which the death weapon was a knife.

These murders were last October's slaying of 8-year-old Harrison McKinley Walker, and the knifing of James A. Kemp, a Navy Gun Factory worker, four years ago.

The slain watchmen in the "Good Friday Murders" at the store were John Carpenter, 66, and Oliver R. Hesse, 57.

Tyler became a suspect in the case when a druggist, Jack Katzoff, 34, of 2814 Erie st. se., identified him as the assailant who stabbed him in the course of an attempted robbery Thursday. Last Saturday, Tyler interrupted a lie-dectector test and admitted slaying the two watchmen.

Potomac Activity Increases

Old Hands Hold Sailing Lead; W. & L. Crew Faces GW High

By Happy Walker

WASHINGTON SAILING skippers, plagued by two weekends of foul weather, finally broke the jinx and opened the six-race Spring series on the Potomac, off Hains Point over the weekend.

Walker

Despite their belated start, 33 entries answered the starting gun to have a try at the newly designed racing course. The second race—once more threatened with cancellation, due to high winds—did not discourage 28 die-hards who were determined to make it a full day of racing.

Brisk winds did account for two spills, one of which was Frank Greenman in his new Thistle, and Penguin No. 570, manned by the Sea Scouts. Patrols recovered the craft handily.

By and large, it was the older hands who made the winning circles in most classes. Leading off were Alan Hoyt and Ed Hoyt in the Thistles. Following were Robert E. Johnson, Norman Schaller and the Sea Scouts in the Lightning class. Bob Ray and Harvey Lekson split first and second place in the Comets, as did Len Penso and Commodore Wirt Gill in the Penguin class. Bill Barker and Bob Lusby accounted for a pair of winners in the Snipe class.

Sponsored by the Potomac River Sailing Association, the third race of the series will be staged this coming Sunday with races starting at 1:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m.

The shell races to be staged off Potomac Boat Club will include varsity-8, junior varsity-8 and 4-oared gig. Coach Butts plans to use the inter-high events as warmups for the coming Stokesbury classic, slated for Philadelphia on May 20. It will be recalled that last year the W & L varsity crew, practically unknown prior to the Stokesbury meet, showed their wake to some of the Nation's top crews, and walked away with the coveted trophy. The W & L crew subsequently went on to take top honors in the nationals

Judge Laws Hails 'Friend Of Court' Proposal

Plan Would Erase Divorce Court Evils, Justice Declares; Bar Acts Tonight

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court sees in the proposed marital relations counsel's office the elimination of "one of the rankest evils that exists in the courts today."

He gave whole-hearted support yesterday to the "friend of court" plan now operating with "overwhelming success" in Detroit and other cities, and proposed by a three-judge committee for the District of Columbia.

The plan, outlined by Judge Edward A. Tamm with an accompanying bill to be presented to Congress, will be voted upon by the District of Columbia Bar Association at its meeting tonight at the Statler Hotel.

Indorsed by 8 to 1

It has received an 8-1 vote of indorsement from a bar association committee, with Arthur J. Hilland dissenting. H. Mason Welch also opposed the plan at a meeting May 2, while John J. Carmody defended it.

"The friend of court" proposal here would abolish the present Domestic Relations Commissioner's office and substitute the Marital Relations Council with broader powers to gather evidence, keep records and process alimony payments in divorce proceedings.

Judge Laws feels the courts are in an "impotent and futile" position on divorce matters, especially in dealing with alimony payments and the custody of children.

"There is no doubt on earth this divorce problem is one of the greatest facing this Nation today," he said.

An Important Step

And he believes the marital affairs counsel plan is the most important step toward prevention of "broken homes, and the resulting incidence of juvenile delinquency and adult crime."

With a staff of six persons in the present commissioner's office, there is no opportunity to investigate thoroughly the differences between wife and husband, the wage-earner's ability to pay alimony or the care and education of their children, he believes.

The "friend of court" procedure offers a "permanent record"—now unavailable—of payments by the husband to the wife and children, according to Judge Laws.

The payroll cost of operating the present domestic relations commissioner's office is $21,107.20. The net cost, according to Judge Tamm, would be $42,615.10.

In Detroit the office operates on a $496,000 budget. It saved welfare agencies $1,451,311 last year.

Lawyer Gets Rebuke for Conversation

Judge David A. Pine yesterday criticized a prosecutor for chatting with jurors during intermission in a criminal trial, but said the action was insufficient to void the jury's guilty verdict.

The District Court jurist denied a new trial for two men convicted of a yoke robbery in which the victim lost $62 and was hospitalized because of the beating.

Judge Pine said that the prosecutor in the case, Harold Bacon, was innocent of any "wrongful intent" in talking to the jurors about subjects not related to the trial but that it was improper nevertheless.

He pointed out that there was no showing that the defendants were prejudiced.

They are George E. Duncan, 23, of 3004 17th st. ne., and Edward E. Ryan, of 1013 8th st. nw. Both were sentenced by the judge to serve eight months to four years for robbery.

Mrs. Keleher Avoids Eviction, But It's Only Temporary

The Washington Post

Mrs. Anna T. (Dolly) Keleher examines broken chain, one of four locks on door to apartment in Woodley Park Towers

Mrs. Anna T. (Dolly) Keleher narrowly avoided being evicted yesterday from her swank Woodley Park Towers apartment, but her victory apparently is temporary.

Mrs. Keleher, who was divorced by former gambler John B. (Dapper Jack) Keleher, acknowledged to a reporter she now owes more than $600 in back rent and contends she has no funds to pay it.

Yesterday United States marshals, armed with a writ of restitution, broke in her apartment and ordered her to leave. She protested that she was ill with a lung condition and could not leave her bed. She showed a doctor's certificate to prove she should remain in bed several months.

The marshals went back to Municipal Court where Judge Walter J. Casey said that he would not stay the eviction.

So this morning the marshals are to return and carry out Mrs. Keleher on a stretcher if necessary to fulfill the eviction order, they said.

Mrs. Keleher, who pays $162 a month rent, says her sole income is $100 a week temporary maintenance that Keleher pays her. She has been awarded $60,000 permanent alimony, but the sum has not been paid. Keleher having appealed the alimony award.

Potomac Dragged For Bolling Airmen Who Set Out in Home-made Craft

Four Bolling Air Force Base airmen, missing since late Sunday, were presumed drowned yesterday after their frail skiff was found capsized against a Potomac pier.

The men who built the skiff in a squadron hobby shop and launched it at about 3:30 p. m. Sunday, were identified by the public relations office as Corpl. James L. Triplett, 22, Elkins, W. Va.; Corp. Edward J. Barry, 20, Waltham, Mass.; Corpl. James D. McKee, 18, Columbus, Ga., and Corpl. James O. Ramsey, 21, Gaffney, S. C. All were attached to the 1100th Casual and Service Squadron.

Corpl. Barry

They last were seen by Sergt. Frank L. Lawson, 21, who reported he spent Sunday afternoon fishing and witnessed the "launching." He told authorities the four came ashore about 7:30 p. m. to obtain fishing equipment, returned to their boat and were paddling near a buoy when Lawson left at about 9 p. m.

The men were not reported missing until about 8 a. m. yesterday when they failed to report for duty. Their commanding officer, Capt. Richard E. Bell, learned of the boat

The skiff, overturned and jammed in the piling of the Naval Research Laboratory dock about a mile below Bolling Air Force Base, was spotted shortly after noon by the crew of a base crash boat.

Dragging operations by base crews and harbor police and a search by divers from the Navy Diving School failed to bring any trace of the men's bodies. Dragging continued until dark and is to be resumed this morning.

The skiff, constructed of half-inch planking, was about 12 feet long and about 18 inches deep. It had no oarlocks and the men used makeshift paddles.

Sesqui Heads Make Plans As Foe Asks Funds Rebate

Rep. Canfield Renews Opposition to Fair; 40 Other Special Events Listed

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Laying aside the Freedom Fair's fate for the day, Sesquicentennial committees yesterday detailed and talked up some 40 other special events set for the remainder of the anniversary year.

At the Capitol, Representative Gordon Canfield (R., N. J.) renewed his campaign in a House speech late yesterday to rescind about two of the three million dollars appropriated for the Sesquicentennial last year.

The long-time House foe of the Capitol's celebration said he based his demand, in part, on the Attorney General's recent ruling that a nonprofit corporation cannot manage the Freedom Fair.

Reports of thousands of visitors' planning to come here for the 48 State honor days sparked the report meeting of the 22 committee chairmen at the District Building.

New York's Day Set

July 26 will be New York day in the Nation's Capital, Lawrence B. Slater, assistant general manager, told the group.

Slater said he has been advised by the State's Sesqui committee that 20,000 to 30,000 New Yorkers are planning to stage an elaborate parade.

And there is a possibility, he added, that "Governor Dewey will head the parade down Pennsylvania ave. — and that would be news."

Representative Canfield called upon Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), of the House Appropriations Committee, to order immediate hearings "to learn if the approximately two million dollars still in possession of the Sesquicentennial Commission can now be returned to the Federal Treasury."

Barron Quoted

He quoted from minutes of the March 15 meeting of the Sesqui executive committee to the effect that Carter T. Barron, executive vice chairman of the Sesqui Commission then stated steps should be taken to "proceed with the Freedom Fair or abandon it."

The minutes showed committee agreement that abandonment of the fair should be announced if the Attorney General's ruling was negative, Canfield continued.

Last month Canfield attempted and failed in a similar effort to freeze the Sesqui funds.

Informed of the Canfield speech, Barron said he did not want to comment on it until the Sesqui executive committee meets later this week.

But before the Representative's new attack, Barron issued a statement in which he said the commission's executive committee will first explore "alternative plans" for managing the fair, adding:

Prepared To Return Funds

"In the event the commission decides to abandon plans for the fair, a substantial portion of the appropriation which Congress has provided will be frozen and returned to the Treasury.

"Work on other phases of the commission's activities will, of course, go forward unabated."

The Freedom Fair was to be an exposition of American ingenuity and know-how through the past 150 years. Its opening has been postponed until next spring.

Top event of the 1950 Sesqui calendar will be the "Cavalcade of Freedom" on September 16, commemorating the laying of the cornerstone (September 18) of the Capitol.

All officials urged greater support from business and civic groups.

Jury Tamper Charge Causes Mistrial Here

Judge Charles F. McLaughlin yesterday ordered a mistrial in a damage suit after ordering that an investigation be made of reports that someone has been tampering with the jury.

The District Court jurist took the actions after conferring with lawyers in his chambers for well over an hour. He would not divulge the nature of the reports other than to say that apparently a bribe was not involved.

The case involved the claim of Mrs. Dorothy L. Green, who said her 6-year-old daughter, Ceciley Green, fell from a moving taxicab owned by Carmen G. Hathaway, 1760 Eckington pl. ne.

The suit was tried once in February, resulting in an $18,000 verdict against Hathaway. However, Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut set the verdict aside as incorrect.

The retrial began last week, and was scheduled to be resumed yesterday morning.

However, the jury was kept waiting while Judge McLaughlin talked to lawyers on both sides and called in Assistant United States Attorney Edward Carey.

The judge told the jury not to disband but to go immediately to Carey's office for interviews.

Judge McLaughlin said that the report was that an attempt had been made to "influence a member or members of the jury."

He announced that the person making the report had been subpenaed but was not then in the court. The judge said that person had recited a "conversation" he heard to a lawyer.

It was learned that the matter reached the judge from Attorney Richard Galiher who represents Hathaway.

In Suit Here

Doctor Denies Maltreatment Of Patient

A Freedmen's Hospital doctor yesterday described in court how "he brought back to life" a woman who is suing for improper care she allegedly received at the hospital.

Dr. John Richard Ford, chief resident in chest surgery, declared Mrs. Dennie Little, 23, was "for all practical purposes dead" from a stab wound in the chest when he first looked at her on May 6, 1948.

Quick injections of plasma and glucose saline and an immediate "difficult" operation were all that saved her life, he said.

Mrs. Little is asking $15,000 damages for scars on her legs, which resulted from blisters received in the hospital. Her husband, Roscoe Little, 26, who was charged with stabbing her with a penknife during a family argument in their home at 409 L st. nw., is asking $5000 damages.

Dr. Ford said yesterday the blisters probably were caused by three sheets used to restrain Mrs. Little while she was given the injections and during the operation.

He said two of the sheets were used to tie her ankles to the legs of the operating table and the third was wrapped around her legs just above the knees.

Defendants in the suit are the United States Government and the Federal Security Agency, which provides the funds for Freedmen's Hospital. The trial will resume before Judge T. Alan Goldsborough at 10 a. m. today.

Truck Falls On Taxicab; Passenger Hurt

A 28-year-old man was critically injured yesterday when a 35-ton concrete mixer turned over on the taxi in which he was a passenger.

But police said Donald G. Gorman of 3939 Burns pl. se. could owe his life to a decision to ride with the driver in the front seat of the taxi rather than in the back, which was staved in.

Gorman did so, police reported, "just in case" the cabbie wanted to pick up other passengers. Attendants at Casualty Hospital said Gorman suffered a skull fracture and other injuries.

Neither George R. Ellis, 27, of 3950 Burns pl. se. driver of the concrete mixer, nor Pendleton W. Hill, 44, of 600 55th st. ne. driver of the cab, was injured.

The accident occured at Third and E sts. nw. at 11:05 a. m. and traffic on Third st.—a main thoroughfare for trucks—was tied up for at least an hour.

Both Ellis and Pendleton were charged by police with colliding and are due to appear at a corporation counsel's hearing today.

Ellis first told police there was a light at the intersection but his brakes failed. Later he said he did not see the light. Hill claimed there was no light.

Police said the air brakes on the self-powered mixer were in operating order, and added that the traffic lights were also working.

Damage to the mixer was estimated at $3000. The taxi's back end was collapsed in accordion fashion.

In an early morning accident, Rosalie Thurman, 28, of 4907 Central ave. ne., was critically injured when struck by a car at Minnesota ave. and Benning rd. nw. Police said she was running toward a bus stop between autos.

Attaches at Casualty Hospital said she suffered fractures of the acial bones, skull and right arm.

Driver of the car was Robert H. Pettit, 20, of 4711 Bromley ave., Suitland, Me., police reported.

Five District Sanitation Department employes were injured when the sanitation truck in which they were riding collapsed with a milk truck at 5th st. and Rhode Island ave. nw.

The injured were:

Harry Bush, 45, of 460 Riggs st. nw., possible back injuries; Samuel Kirbey, 43, of 1244 Florida ve., possible spinal injuries, both admitted to Freedmen's Hospital; Richard Courtney, 46, of 1207 6th st. nw., fractures of the ribs, left arm and left hand, admitted to Providence Hospital; Andrew Barnes, 36, of 305 10th st., cuts to head and body, and Henry A. Vorrath, 44, of Del Ray, Va., driver of the sanitation truck, injuries to left arm and left leg.

The milk truck, driven by Paul Brown, 26, of Remington, Va., was overturned. Brown was not injured.

Pvts. John C. Vinson and William M. Boone said they would charge Brown with colliding and Vorrath with failure to yield the right of way.

Lawyer Goes On Trial in 'Payoff' Case

Albert F. Graham, an attorney, went on trial yesterday on a charge of taking $2000 from a client who charges that the lawyer promised to use the money to "pay" a policeman.

The client, Francisco Gal, 47-year-old Hungarian, of 2242 Cathedral ave. nw., told the jury yesterday that the payment was made so he could get American citizenship.

Gal testified in District Court that he had forfeited $25 for disorderly conduct and hired Graham to represent him in seeing that he got his citizenship despite this. Gal said he paid Graham $200 for a fee and the other $2000 "to pay to the officer."

Police Pvt. Louis T. Williams, of the Vice Squad, said he arrested Gal for disorderly conduct in a sex case and was called in later by Graham to talk about the arrest. Williams denied being offered any money. Gal was in Graham's outer office during the discussion, Williams said.

Graham is due to take the witness stand, probably today, in the trial before Judge Jennings Bailey.

Military Gets Tax Exemption In Arlington

Arlington County residents who can claim exemptions under the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act will not have to pay county automobile license fees.

This was announced yesterday by Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul D. Brown after a conference by County Manager A. T. Lundberg, County Court Judge Hugh Reid and Commonwealth's Attorney Denham Rucker.

The Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act relieves service personnel assigned to duty at points away from their permanent residence of paying duplicate taxes.

Richitt Case Report May Be Released

The secret report on the investigation of the Richitt case probably will be made public this week, Commissioner John Russell Young said yesterday.

At the time the report is released, the Commissioners will announce what action is to be taken, Young added.

The report, prepared by Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, deals with the dispute between Capt. Anthony Richitt, formerly of the Third Precinct, and Police Chief Robert J. Barrett. It reportedly has to do with alleged erasures in Third Precinct records.

The dispute between the two police officers arose after Captain Richitt was transferred to the Seventh Precinct. He claimed he was moved because of information he gave to a House subcommittee investigating crime in the District.

Barrett denied this and said the transfer was ordered because Richitt failed to submit a requested report promptly and had been "insubordinate."

The subcommittee in special hearings aired the dispute but took no action. A few days later Barrett said erasures had been found in Third Precinct records.

The Commissioners ordered Maher to investigate and submit a report. This report was turned over to the Commissioners more than a month ago.

Police Seek Man In Exposure Case

Prince Georges County police, after freeing one suspect, are continuing their hunt for a man who made obscene gestures to a College Park woman and two children on Sunday.

The woman, Mrs. Florence Kennedy, 39, of 3433 Stanford rd., University Hills, told police the man exposed himself indecently and made obscene remarks as she and the children were walking along a wooded path near the University of Maryland. She was accompanied by her son Lee, 8, and a neighbor's daughter, Lynn Brown, 5.

Police questioned a man who answered the general description of the offender but released him after Mrs. Kennedy could not make a positive identification.

Fairfax Boy, 17, Shot in Fight

Fairfax County police last night said they were investigating a juvenile gang, one of whose member was seriously wounded early yesterday by a 17-year-old youth the gang attempted to "get."

According to police, one member of the gang was shot in the abdomen when he and his companions tried to beat up a 17-year-old Merrifield boy. After the victim was stabbed in the neck, he pulled a pistol from his pocket, shot one of his assailants and escaped.

The gang member, who also is 17, is in fair condition at Arlington Hospital. His intended victim was released from the same hospital after treatment. Police said they have not yet learned how many youths are in the gang.

Falls Church Slates Budget Hearing Friday

The Falls Church City Council last night voted to hold a hearing on the town's proposed general budget at 8 p.m. Friday in the Madison School.

The council also shifted $2000 from the highway fund to the library fund. This action followed an appeal to the council last week by Miss Jewel Drickamer, Falls Church librarian, and William Van Allen, a member of the mayor's committee for more and better reading.

Retail Rate Talks Denied

Dairies Disclaim Conspiracy To Fix District Milk Prices

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Top officials of four area milk distributors yesterday testified they did not participate in a price-fixing conspiracy with the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association as charged by the Government.

Heads of the three other dairies under criminal indictment are expected to testify as the trial enters its fifth day in District Court today at 10 a.m.

Representatives of the firms met with the association after wholesale price changes, but this was to bargain about the price and did not include discussion of retail rates, they told Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

Those testifying were Joseph L. Upton, office manager, Washington division, Safeway Stores; Edgar M. Brawner, president and Maurice V. Davison, vice president, Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy; Arthur Lee Thompson, president and treasurer, Thompson's Dairy, and Samuel H. Harvey, president and general manager, Harvey Dairy.

Chestnut Farms and Thompson canceled "full supply" contracts with the association on September 30, 1938, and the witnesses yesterday denied there was any subsequent "gentleman's understanding" that they were to continue to buy exclusively from the association.

Thompson said it was simply a case of inability to get milk of similar quality in sufficient quantity anywhere else.

Earlier, the Government disclosed grand jury testimony of William B. Hooper, association office manager, that Chestnut Farms had such an understanding. Hooper yesterday had denied there was an agreement either written or oral but only a "course of conduct" that usually resulted in daries accepting deliveries without question.

In the morning session, Judge Holtzoff ruled he would exclude evidence of reasons why the association withdrew from the wartime Federal Marketing Order because it had a right to do so under the order's terms.

Robert H. Winn, special assistant to the Attorney General, had contended this act was no violation of law in itself, but had contributed to the alleged conspiracy.

District Commissioners yesterday postponed indefinitely a meeting set for Thursday on whether to reimpose the ban on non-District inspected milk and whether to change sterilization regulations.

The postponement was on the request of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association, the Commissioners announced. The association secretary-treasurer, Bruce B. Derrick, declined to discuss reasons for the request.

A. B. & W. Seeks Hike in Fares Because of Revenue Decline

The Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. wants to increase its bus fares both to Washington and Virginia points because of a decline in revenues.

Applications for the hikes have been filed with both the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Virginia State Corporation Commission. The increased Virginia-Washington fare would become effective automatically on June 4 unless opposed by ICC. AB&W has asked the State commission to schedule hearings on its proposed intrastate fare boost.

The bus company proposals, announced by Beverly C. May, general manager of the company, would call for a flat five-cent rise on all lines operated by AB&W both interstate and intrastate, with one exception.

The company proposes to set up a new one-zone intrastate fare in the Alexandria and Arlington area, and would set fares within this zone at 15 cents cash or 12½ cents token rate, with four tokens for 50 cents.

Other sample fare increases would be from 10 to 15 cents cash or 7½ to 12½ cents token in zoned intrastate fares; an increase from 15 cents cash or 12½ cents token to 20 cents cash and 17½ cents token in interstate traffic.

May said the company had registered a $37,300 loss for the first three months of this year, despite economies, and owing largely to a decline in passenger revenue. He said rush-hour service was being "hamstrung" by traffic congestion, and that all service was being affected by record automobile ownership in both Washington and nearby Virginia.

May said that the 10-cents-an-hour wage increase offered AB&W employes, who have been technically on strike since July 21, 1949, would be contingent on the fare increase.

Meanwhile, the Arlington County board yesterday asked the ICC to reconsider its recent order granting the Arnold Bus Lines a fare increase.

Movies Plan Own Cleanup Campaign, Jackson Reveals

Stephen S. Jackson, consultant to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, told fellow Holy Cross alumni last night that Hollywood movie magnates have promised to purge the industry of immorality themselves.

The former domestic relations judge's mission to the motion picture capital at the committee's behest was "to bring about measures within the industry to obviate the necessity of Federal censorship, which I have always opposed," he said.

As a result, he received assurance from leaders that they will take steps to correct the "admitted evil" of "exploitation of unfavorable conduct of movie stars for box-office promotion," he added.

The former New York City jurist told the South Atlantic Club of Holy Cross Alumni, meeting at the Mayflower, that he could not comment on his findings until they are reported to the Senate committee.

Jackson went on to attack the modern "psychology of temporariness" in family affairs and to extol the "doctrine of stability of the martial status and permanence of the marital bond" as taught by the Catholic Church.

Appearing on the program with District Judge Matthew F. Maguire as toastmaster, was the Very Rev. John A. O'Brien, S. J., president of Holy Cross.

Father O'Brien delivered an urgent plea for the cause of liberal arts colleges, whether they be "nonsectarian, church-affiliated or Catholic."

"It would be tragic," he said, "if publicly controlled and financed universities were to crush out of existence the liberal arts colleges that have been the backbone of our educational system."

The cost of such a fate is the "decline of culture, increased confusion of thought and an overemphasis on material rather than spiritual truths and values," he said.

The club, 2019 19th st. nw. was ordered disbanded after Assistant United States Attorney Bruce G. Sundlun and Ross O'Donoghue presented evidence that whiskey was being sold there after hours to the public.

The club president, Frederick J. Turner, was subpenaed to testify but did not appear for the morning court session. When brought to court, he acknowledged that he had told marshals he had to go to work and could not be at court at that time.

Agnes Smedley, Noted Author, Dies in Nursing Home at 56

Oxford, England, May 8 (U.P.)—Agnes Smedley, 56, American author whom the Army accused, then cleared or charges she spied for Russia in the Far East, died in a nursing home here Saturday.

Miss Smedley

Miss Smedley, who had been in Britain for six months writing a book, was admitted to the nursing home 10 days ago.

A friend, Mrs. D. J. Sloss, announced Miss Smedley's death in a three-line announcement in the London Times today. It was not generally known until then.

Mrs. Sloss refused to disclose what caused Miss Smedley's death. She said no funeral arrangements had been made.

A 32-000-word report from General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo last year accused Miss Smedley of assisting Soviet espionage in the Far East.

She described the charge as a "despicable lie" and later was cleared by Army authorities in Washington.

Born in Missouri, Miss Smedley was educated at the University of California, New York University and the University of Berlin.

She spent 23 years abroad, including 12 in China.

During the Chinese civil war she traveled with Chinese Communist armies and wore the uniform of the Communist Eighth Route Army.

Once during World War II her name appeared on a Japanese secret service "death list." She was the author of a number of books on the Chinese Communists.

Success story

The big swing, today, is to Packard Ultramatic Drive—the first fully automatic drive to combine

1 The super smoothness of torque-converter acceleration with

2 The gasoline-saving efficiency, and more positive responsiveness of solid direct drive at all cruising speeds!

And here are some of the wonderful results:

No clutch-pushing, no gear-shifting. No jerking, no clunking. Nothing new to learn. Just set it . . . forget it!

No gas-wasting slippage at cruising speeds. You cruise in solid direct drive. No "racing engine sensation"—no over-heating of the drive unit

No risky down-shifts, which might cause a skid on slippery pavement. Smooth, gradual engine braking power.

No gearshift lag. Instant change from Forward to Reverse, to rock the car in snow or mud. And more positive responsiveness when cruising.

Never, in all Packard history, has a new engineering feature equaled the success of Packard's new and exclusive Ultramatic Drive!

Since the first of the year, more than 85% of all Packards (including the lowest-priced models) have been ordered with Packard Ultramatic Drive—the last word in automatic no-shift control!

Just try it and you'll know the reasons why!

Mary Haworth's Mail

Matron Gets Strapless Gown for Gala Party; Brother Admires the Effect But Her Husband Calls It Immodest, Lectures Her; Now What?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married one year to Jeffry, a sweet, easy-going fellow. Until this week nothing had happened to mar our happiness, but now I am in a dilemma.

Friends have invited me to a swank affair, and as Jeffry will be on duty that night, my brother Ralph is taking me. Hearing that women guests intend to wear strapless gowns, I bought a beautiful white one; and when I tried it on for the family, my brother said I was a knockout. I could hardly wait to model the gown for my husband, but when I did, he was sharp about it. He said he didn't want to be arbitrary, but was shocked to think I would consider such a get-up.

He delivered a lecture on modesty, and said he was nauseated by the modern fashion-parade of nakedness. He told me if I wore the gown he would be hurt and displeased. My mother backs him up. In her opinion, I just don't deserve him.

But if my brother sees nothing wrong with the gown, why should my husband? They are both the same age. Are there many men like my husband? Please don't advise me to buy something more conservative; it would only make me conspicuous. Should I go ahead and wear the gown, hoping Jeffry's displeasure won't last long? Or should I return the dress (I can get credit) and stay home? Please answer immediately. B. J.

DEAR B. J.: I am not sure that your husband's attitude affords you cause for complaint. In its native background, the sarong-type garment may seem more innocent than the mother-hubbards brought in by missionaries. But in our culture a strapless decolletage has premeditated aphrodisiac implications, as everyone knows.

The provocative aspect of the strapless gown is the main selling point intended by the designer, and so recognized by the wearer and those who react with admiration, envy, shock or whatever to her appearance in it. Therefore I think you are being insincerely wide-eyed in professing not to comprehend why your husband objects to that type of party dress for you, when your brother has no fault to find.

I should infer that Jeffry objects because being sex conscious where you are concerned (a normal attitude in conjugal relationship), he gets the full impact of the gown's provocative pitch; and being single-mindedly in love, he pays you the ingenuous compliment of feeling that any man would have eyes only for you in that get-up.

Thus naturally he flinches from the idea of your baiting a stagline with that regalia, the more especially when he can't be with you, to offset the gown's allure with the social accent of cherished dignity that a devoted husband's presence would provide.

As for the difference between your husband's attitude and your brother's, it seems about right to me. After all, something would be wrong with your relationship to one or the other, if they felt identical reactions to you in a dashing costume. Ralph's reaction is happily neutral, although aware of the effect the gown creates, whereas Jeffry's is emotionally colored, inescapably, by a history of intimacy which unconsciously sparks his conviction that on you the dress is inappropriately suggestive for public occasions.

Majority Agree With Jeffry

ARE THERE many husbands like Jeffry? It is my belief that the majority of married men who have good taste, a strongly masculine nature and clear awareness of their likes and dislikes, and who take a fond interest in their wife's apparel, much prefer her to dress elegantly rather than seductively for party-going. And the covered-up look, besides being modest and pleasing to a sensible husband, does as much for a woman as extreme decollete, or maybe even more, if she knows what to choose.

My advice is, exchange the dress for one that Jeffry approves, then go to the party happy in the knowledge that you've pleased him. This expression of loving consideration for him should do much more for your life in the long run, than being "individualist" by defying his preference, or staying home to sulk about his rejection of your first selection. M. H.

'For the Good of the Hemisphere'

Miller Asks U. S. to Aid Argentina

By Norma Lanum

FINANCIAL aid to Argentina was recommended yesterday by the Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, Edward Miller.

Assistance to Argentina should be made available "for the good of the hemisphere," said Mr. Miller, who recently returned from consultations with President Peron in Buenos Aires.

The State Department official spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Women's National Democratic Club at the clubhouse.

Withholding aid because of ideological differences would be a "negative and sterile policy," he stated, a policy "which would be welcomed by our enemies abroad."

Asserting that withholding assistance from Argentina would "cut ourselves from the people," Mr. Miller said: "We must not let relations between governments get in the way of relations between the people."

A club member rose to ask the official "What can Peron contribute to this country?"

He answered that "Argentina is one of the greatest nations in this continent," that she could give important aid to this country in time of war, and that during peace she could be an important contributor to the multilateral system of trade.

Earlier in the program Mr. Miller maintained this country should seek friendships of Latin-American countries and "weld togeher a group of nations" which would stand as a strong force against threats from the east.

Then the Assistant Secretary outlined assistance already being offered by the United States to Latin-American countries, particularly to Paraguay and Chile. More aid will be given soon to Brazil and Mexico, he commented.

Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Secretary of Interior, introduced the speaker. The new president of the club, Mrs. Fred Morrison, presided.

Also sitting at the head table were the speaker's wife, Mrs. Miller; Mrs. James E. Webb, wife of the Acting Secretary of State; Mrs. Charles Murphy, wife of the President's Special Counsel; Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Elbert Thomas, wife of the Senator from Utah, and Mrs. Florence Finney of the State Department.

Ask Anne

Anne Tells Arlington Reader How To Make Black and White Shadow Icing, Cake Rich in 'Chocolaty' Flavor

DEAR ANNE:
I have seen pictures of cake that seemed to have chocolate icing over the white, with the chocolate running down the sides in a very mouth-watering way. Can you tell me how this is done? Also have you a recipe for a good "chocolaty" devil's food cake?

C. K., Arlington

Such cakes are first iced with white icing, then coated with a bittersweet chocolate "veneer" for silhouette or shadow effect. A recipe for the veneer follows, plus a recipe for a devil's food cake that is rich in chocolate flavor, dark in color and light, moist, and tender in texture.

BITTERSWEET VENEER

Melt 2 squares bitter chocolate over warm water. Gradually stir in 2 teaspoons butter and blend. When slightly cool, pour over cake covered with frosting which has been allowed to harden. For silhouette effect, permit the chocolate to run over edge and down sides of cake.

DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

1½ teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
6 eggs separated
4½ squares bitter chocolate
1½ cups sour milk

Sift together flour, soda and salt. Cream butter until soft and smooth. Gradually add sugars, beating until fluffy. Beat in vanilla and well-beaten egg yolks. Melt chocolate over hot water. Stir into creamed mixture. Add flour mixture alternately with sour milk, beating after each addition. Lastly fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into two deep greased, 9-inch cake pans. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 40 minutes.

DEAR ANNE:
A house of mine has very inadequate space for hanging out laundry after washing. As there are so many makes of washing machines that claim to wash and dry clothes, too, I thought I might ask you to advise me which make of machine does the best drying job.

None of the washing machines on the market actually dry your clothes, though some, especially those of the "spin dry" type, get out sufficient moisture to make them almost ready to iron. If you feel that you wish to spend the money, an electric clothes dryer would be an excellent addition to your equipment under the circumstances.

DEAR ANNE:
Can you tell me how to candy mint leaves and flower petals?

M. A. K., Silver Spring.

Remove the leaves or petals from the stem or flower. Coat both sides of the leaf with white of egg. Combine 6 drops oil of peppermint with ½ cup granulated sugar. Dip the leaves in the sugar on both sides. Place them to dry on waxed paper. If necessary, the leaves may be dried in a very slow oven.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

JOAN CRAWFORD . . . has no middle-age spread or phobias. Her formula? Discipline. She is vigorously athletic, mentally and physically.

Middle-Age Spread Isn't Necessary

By Ida Jean Kain

This is the seventh in a series of 12 articles on keeping young.

THE spread is neither healthy nor inevitable . . . at any age. But this figure fault is so characteristic of the middle-age figure we have come to think of it as being in the nature of things, and disregard the causes—too little exercise, slumpings amidships and, alas, overeating.

The correction is to restore live tone to the girdle muscles. There is a three-way control through the midsection. One pair of muscles runs up and down, the full length of the abdominal wall—their muscular pull is up. A broad band of flat muscles comes in on the bias, covering the side-front of the abdomen—their pull is in. And underneath are transverse layers of muscle designed to flatten.

To get the gist of it, begin with the lower abdominal muscles and pull up strongly, centering the up-pull through the midsection. This brings the in-pull muscles into the act, and the effect is streamlines. Don't put the cart before the horse and try to raise chest and shoulders—the up-pull must be centered through the middle and held with those muscles.

If this posture is too much effort, more tone is needed in the muscles. It is particularly important to restore tone to the abdominal muscles as weight is lost. Otherwise the organs which have been partially supported with fat will sag, which brings on a feeling of depression.

Toning Exercises

HERE are three progressive, toning exercises . . .

Position: Lie on back on floor, feet elevated to bench or chair seat to give internal organs a lift, arms down at sides.

Movement: Bring one knee vigorously up toward chest as both arms are raised and stretched back on floor overhead. Pull! Concentrate on the up-and-in pull of the abdominal muscles, pressing small of back to floor. Return arms and foot to starting position and continue flexing alternate knees — 6 counts, later 12, stil later 18.

Position: Lie on back on floor, legs elevated to low bench, arms down at sides.

Movement: Raise hips up to straight line and fling arms back on floor at the same time. Do not arch small of back. Give a strong up-and-in pull with the abdominal muscles while hips are elevated. Hold. Lower hips to floor and arms to sides. Repeat 10 times, relax, repeat another 10 counts.

The last exercise is rugged and not for softies—3 times is enough to start with. . . .

Position: Lie on back on floor arms stretched up on floor overhead, legs straight down.

Movement: By sheer power of the stomach muscles, come up to sitting position and go on over to touch fingers to toes . . . feet anchored if necessary.

Exercise whittles the middle measurement, but what actually shrinks the stomach? Smaller meals! Stop crowding in too many calories at dinner.

Southern Baptists Open Parley Today

Chicago, May 8 (AP). — Some 10,000 messengers registered today for the Southern Baptist Convention, the first held north of the Mason-Dixon Line. The four-day session opens Tuesday night.

Preceding what probably is the largest church convention numerically in the world, the Woman's Missionary Union, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention, opened sessions at Medinah Temple today. The meeting attracted more than 6000 women—largest group of delegates in the union's history.

Highlight of the convention meetings will be a united Baptist evangelistic service in the Chicago Stadium Friday night. It is expected to attract 25,000 persons of all Baptist groups. A thousand-voice Negro choir will lead the singing and the Rev. Dr. Robert G. Lee, Memphis, Tenn., president of the convention, and the Rev. Dr. J. H. Jackson, pastor of Olivet Baptist Church, will be the preachers.

On the eve of the convention opening, the Chicago Coliseum—scene of presidential campaign rallies, dance marathons and circuses—was transformed into a large vision of the Baptist South. The annex was filled with exhibits from Southern Baptist schools and seminaries and the auditorium proper was decorated with huge banners and a "Freedom's holy light" (convention theme) backdrop.

'Modern' Motherhood

Mothers-to-Be Learn Natural Childbirth

"Training for Motherhood" is a new medical method of preparing women for childbirth without so much of the pain so closely associated with it.

Carol Taylor, newspaperwoman and a new mother herself, talked with doctors who advocate it and with mothers who went into training for it.

By Carol Taylor

CHAPTER TWO

I spoofed "natural childbirth" until I saw how the program is practiced at the Yale clinic in New Haven.

"You can't tell me it doesn't hurt! You can't tell me you don't need a doctor to help you."

That was my reaction and, I am sure, of other mothers who have been misled by some articles describing a new easy, natural way of having a baby with the mother doing all the work herself.

I had my baby in what I thought was the old-fashioned way. A shot in the arm when the going got rough; whiffs of gas when it really became tough.

I was conscious during delivery. A nice young doctor who assisted my obstetrician kept piling hot water bottles around me.

He'd whisper again and again into my ear: "Let me know if they help you. We're experimenting with these."

I kept trying to reassure him that they did. I saw the doctor spank my baby and heard her cry and the nurse leaned over and told me I had a girl.

Actually, I found, it wasn't so far from natural childbirth after all.

Natural childbirth, as interpreted at the Yale clinic, is education of the mother for childbirth.

It means that unless complications arise she is not a subject for deep anesthesia.

She usually is conscious during labor and delivery, and does her part to bear the baby. During the prenatal educational period, she is trained to use her muscles correctly in labor.

She understands the physiology of childbirth and she is trained to be prepared mentally for the delivery.

One great advantage, it seems to me, is the "support" principle, which means that someone (doctor, nurse or even your husband, in the early stages) is always with you during labor.

Another great advantage is that it does not leave everything in the hands of the doctor, but inspires the mother to do her part.

It becomes a point of pride with mothers who have attended prenatal classes in natural childbirth and learned relaxation, to do everything they can to bring about a natural delivery.

I remember that I became impatient with my doctor during delivery when he kept telling me to "push-push" with each contraction.

"I'll do it next time," I kept promising. Perhaps prenatal instruction might have helped me. I cannot be sure.

One mother who took exercises in preparation for natural delivery confided: "With the first pain, I forgot everything they told me."

"It's a muscular effort," said Dr. Herbert Thoms, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Yale School of Medicine and director of the clinic. "You can be trained for it."

In New York City, interest in natural childbirth has been inspired by the Maternity Center Association, which conducts demonstration classes in preparation for the program.

Even doctors go to the center to learn the exercises. In 1947, the association brought Dr. Grantly Dick Read, author of "Childbirth Without Fear," from England to talk on natural childbirth at the Academy of Medicine. It also contributed funds to establish a fellowship at Yale for study of the technique.

The New York Hospital is conducting classes to prepare mothers-to-be for labor and delivery, but Dr. R. Gordon Douglas, obstetrician and gynecologist-in-chief, said: "I would object to the term 'natural childbirth.'"

Clinic patients at the Lying-In Hospital of the New York Hospital take a course of six classes which include exercise, relaxation and psychological preparation. Dr. Douglas stressed the importance of psychological preparation. "And one of the most important things," he added, "is having the patients relax."

He approves the so-called "support" principle.

"What a patient wants more than anything else when she comes in for labor is not to be left alone," he explained.

At this hospital, he said, "our ambition is not deep anesthesia. It never has been. We've always hoped to have the cooperation of the mother during labor."

It's Not Painless

Dr. Thoms, whose book, "Training for Childbirth," for doctors and nurses, will be published soon, said Yale has delivered more than 1200 mothers by the natural technique.

At first he was skeptical of the program and only one out of every three patients was put in the "natural" group.

"Well," he said, "this system went along for a while until it broke down. The doctors and nurses just couldn't help carrying over the technique with the other type of patients."

He declared: "I emphasize, and emphasize over again, we do not in any way say that it is painless childbirth. We find that there is a minimum of discomfort and anesthesia methods are never withheld. A woman may have medication anytime she wants.

Over 90 per cent are fully conscious at delivery, he said.

Dr. Robert Wyatt, Maternity Center Fellow on the resident university staff, also objected to the word "painless" in describing "natural childbirth." He said that only 2 percent of patients can go through labor and say they had no discomfort at all.

When a patient is admitted with indications that labor may be prolonged, she often is given a sedative, he explained.

Some women come in with their minds set on having no medication, said Dr. Wyatt. "We don't want them to do that. They've tried to cover up when they actually needed medication. When they finally admit they do need something they go to pieces and say "I've failed myself."

Video Suits Him

Here's Alan Young, Four Years Later

By John Crosby

IT WAS just four years ago, to this very day, that I undertook this highly specialized line of endeavor, a radio column. Television was a seedling, just barely planted. You speculated what would come up in the spring but that's about all you could do.) The subject of that first tentative essay on radio was a young Canadian-born comic named Alan Young and here, four years later, I find myself again scrutinizing the Alan Young Show—but this time it's a television show.

Television and Young (and, for that matter, me too) have come a long, long way in four years. The Young Show was always a pretty good show in radio but never much more than that. In television, the lad (aged 32) is definitely a comedian to watch.

Along with Sid Caesar, he has an instinctive feel for this medium; he can make you laugh awfully hard with the minimum of dialogue; and he has an unerring coordination of tongue, face and body. Unlike Caesar, he is not inventing new comic forms but going way, way back to the devices and spirit of the silent picture comedians—Harold Lloyd, Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton and Harry Langdon.

Footsteps of Harold Lloyd

THAT first column four years ago, I remarked that Young was following in the footsteps of Harold Lloyd and, I'm happy to be able to report that I don't have to eat a single one of those words. He still is. Young plays the part of a timid, awkward but lovable youth who blunders into the most preposterous situations through no fault of his own. Invariably, it takes enormous ingenuity to get out of them.

On his TV show, a half-hour program seen in the East by kinescope (CBS-TV 9 p. m. Thursdays), Young will wander into a clothing store intent upon buying a new suit, an ordinary enough experience to anyone but Young. Soon he is engulfed in suits twice his size; his own suit is sold while his back is turned; he is insulted by the sales clerk who sold it; and turned out in the street in his underwear. That sort of skit could be plain awful in less skilled hands than Young's. The way he does it, it's both funny and appealing.

On a couple of other occasions Young has played the roles respectively of a workman on a construction gang, a British officer of enormous restraint with a time bomb on his hands, and a young man trying to fight his way through a cloud of ladies to the cashier in a supermarket. In most of them he has shown great ingenuity with the mechanical gag, something I didn't think I'd live to see again. (Trapped under a bathtub, using a pipe as a periscope, for example, or getting a box of cookies on the top shelf of a supermarket by tipping over four rows of other groceries.)

It's Mostly Young

THERE ARE generally two skits in each half hour padded out by a couple of song-and-dance acts to give Young a chance to catch his breath and change costume. But the show is largely Young. Incidentally the kinescope—which is seen here 23 days after the show is performed live in Hollywood—seems to be of better quality than most of those things. Even the commercials, in which Young participates, are not at all hard to take.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Oh, Well; That's Fame For You

Gretchen Hood of 1226 Fairmont st. nw. has a friend who teaches guitar here. He's a pupil of the celebrated Andres Segovia and, as you might expect, holds Segovia up to his own pupils as a shining example.

One young lady decided to buy some of the master's phonograph records, so that she could study his technique. But the clerk in the store greeted her request with a completely blank look. "Segovia?" he said. "I don't think we've . . ."

"You must have Segovia records," protested the young lady. "He's the great guitar player."

"Oh, sure," said the clerk, recognition dawning at last. "You'll find the cowboy records over there in the corner."

PERSONAL NOTES

Herbert Sharfman, 17 Elmira st. se.: I've never kept an accurate count, so I can't cite accurate percentages. But it runs something like this: Some contributions just aren't usable, for a variety of reasons. And of those that are suitable for use, about 2 out of 3 fail to get into print because of lack of space.

LIFE IS LIKE THAT

Last autumn, when the days grew chill . . . And saucy winds blew loud and shrill . . . I packed my summer clothes away . . . Until another, warmer day

. . . And now I get them out ag'in . . . But find that (to my deep chagrin) . . . These airy togs don't fit my figger . . . 'Cause I've grown two sizes bigger. Naomi C. Jarman

HE'S NOT FUSSY

Apparently the Chief Executive considers his upcoming speeches nonpartisan. He doesn't care which party you vote for, just so it's the Democrats.

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

A few days ago I ran an item about old pianos which are stored away in attics and basements and are no longer used by anybody.

I urged owners of such instruments to offer them as Give-Aways, and mentioned (but didn't identify) a certain little girl who is considered a child prodigy — but who couldn't continue her musical education because her parents could not afford to buy her a piano.

Mrs. Richard W. Israel of 4210 S. 12th rd., Arlington, Va., saw my plea and decided to give away an upright piano she hasn't used in some time.

She got many calls, of course and finally chose what she thought was the most deserving applicant.

And today I have a letter from the mother of the talented child; the little girl is in seventh heaven—because she's the one who got Mrs. Israel's piano.

ADD SIGNS

Mrs. Allan Chaimas of 1865 Park rd. nw. tells me that on a little roadside store outside Duxbury, Mass., there's a sign which proclaims:

POSITIVELY

Many, many months ago we decided that we wouldn't run any more items based on typographical errors. So many of them are available in the various newspapers that the routine got a bit boring.

But contributions for our defunct Pied Type Dept. have continued to come in by the score anyhow, and it's taking all my will power to refuse to run a few of them. However, I'm a man of iron will, and I positively will not succumb.

Not even to the pip spotted by Walter L. Campbell of 206 E. Thornapple st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Walter's clipping says in part: "The Chisox won the opener, 5-0, behind Lefty Bill Wight's two-bit pitching." Comments Walter:

"It has always been my understanding that pitchers were supposed to give the opposing batters no quarter."

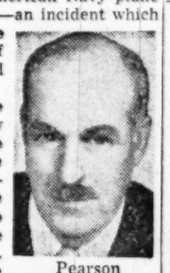
Facts in Plane Shooting Cited

By Drew Pearson

It is now possible to give the complete facts in the Russian attack on the American Navy plane over the Baltic—an incident which literally made the capitals of Europe hold their breath.



Pearson

Most of the facts are now known to the Russians, so the American public should be entitled to know what the Russians know. In fact, the Russians knew of the plane's departure and the nature of its mission even before it left Port Lyautey in Morocco, North Africa. They also knew that the plane was equipped with high-powered radar and electronics equipment capable of watching Russian amphibian maneuvers and the flight of Russian rockets over the Russians' most secret rocket-testing ground—the Baltic.

Just how they knew this is not known. But it might have been from the list of Navy personnel posted on the bulletin board at Port Lyautey before the plane took off. The bulletin board was posted in a public place, and the Navy made the mistake of giving the ratings of all 10 members of the plane's crew. This showed they were specialists in electronics and could have tipped off the Russians that the plane was on a radar mission.

The Russians have had uninvited observers at our naval maneuvers, but usually in fishing boats or submarines. However, it is much easier to chart rocket flights from an airplane, which was why the Navy plane was used.

British Watched

This particular plane flew from Morocco to Wiesbaden, Germany, stopped for fuel, then proceeded to the Baltic, and was about 30 miles off the Latvian coast headed toward the secret Russian naval base at Libau when four Russian fighter planes came into sight.

The four Russian fighters, obviously lying in wait for the Navy plane, ordered it to land. However, the American crew had strict orders not to let their highly classified electronics equipment get into foreign hands, so they put out to sea.

The British radar observation showed the Privateer swerved sharply, with the Russian fighters in hot pursuit. The plane was shot down almost immediately.

Does Crew Still Live?

The fact that British radar witnessed the incident was why the State Department was so positive in replying to the Russian note. The United States was also quick to identify the four Russian pilots who received the order of the Red Banner as the pilots responsible for shooting our plane. British radar was the reason.

What surprised United States officials at first was that the Russians announced the event to the world in a note of protest. Reason for the publicity, United States officials now conclude, is that the Russians knew the plane had been observing Russian rocket maneuvers and determined to put the United States on the spot.

Since the incident occurred, the recovered life rafts and submerged wheel have confirmed the British radar's estimate that the plane was definitely 30 miles off the Latvian coast. Examination of the rafts shows that the plane hit the water with an impact. The holes in one raft, however, are not bullet holes, so the crew, if they got into the rafts, were not fired on.

Speculation still continues as to whether the crew could have been picked up by the Russians later. Latvian fishermen reported seeing a Soviet destroyer and several patrol boats rush out from Fort Libau in the direction of the crash. The Navy has found several contradictions to this report, however, and doesn't rely on it.

Note—Chief conclusion to be drawn from the Baltic incident is that with Russian submarines steaming close to the American shore, with American planes inspecting Soviet installations in the Baltic and with Russian demonstrations being deliberately incited in Berlin, anything can happen.

Government Cookbook

Congressman Howard Smith, the frock-coated Virginian from across the Potomac River in Alexandria, Va., still winces when he is joshed about cookbooks.

Cookbooks have become the bane of Smith's existence. In fact the good "Deacon," as he is called in Virginia, got so riled over the model cookbook published by the Department of Agriculture that he stormed to the floor of the House and said:

"Maybe some of you heard about this cookbook. The morning papers said it was going to be given away free, and both my telephones were clogged all day long. Now it has gotten to where the mail is coming in about the cookbook addressed as 'Congressman Howard W. Smith Cookbook Department.' I don't think there is a single member of this House that ever had the idea the Government was going to spend $75,000 of the taxpayers' money on this doggone cookbook."
